MASHER ARRESTED

E. W. COOPER, STRIKING MACHINIST HELPER, TAKEN IN BY A SPECIAL OFFICER.

TOO FRESH WITH A VISITING LADY

Was Fined $50 by Police Judge James C. Connor This Morning, and Went to Jail in Default of Payment.

E. W. Cooper, a striking machinist helper, whose home is at Springfield, Mo., was arrested at 10:30 o'clock last night by W. E. Rickey, special agent for the Missouri Pacific railway, and committed to the city jail, with a charge of "mashing" preferred against him.

Cooper was arraigned before Police Judge James C. Connor this morning. The charge was read to him, and he at once entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $50, and in default of payment was committed to the city jail to serve the fine.

The complaint was filed by Miss Emma McMonigle, of Carterville, Mo. Miss McMonigle had been at Sweet Springs and was on her way home.

She was awaiting Missouri Pacific train No. 9 and was occupying a seat in the ladies' waiting room at the passenger station.

At 10:30 o'clock Cooper espied her and went into the waiting room and took a seat beside the lady. He struck up a conversation and learned the lady's name, also her destination Miss McMonigle was ignorant of the man's intentions, and when he said he was from Carterville and knew many people there she began conversing with him.

Miss McMonigle named several residents of Carterville and Cooper said he knew all of them. He then suggested that she go walking with him. She declined, politely at first. But his repeated efforts to have her go caused her to complain to Night Ticket Agent Cooper.

Special Agent Rickey appeared on the scene shortly afterwards, and Mr Cooper related the circumstances Officer Rickey interviewed the lady and learned her story. He then placed Cooper under arrest.

WOMEN AT BATTLE

THEY WILL BE PERMITTED TO WITNESS THE FIGHT AT RENO, NEVADA.

HAVE SPECIAL BOXES FOR THEM

Mother Living in New Jersey Stops Off in Chicago With Her 15-Year-Old Son, Who She Is Taking to the Ringside.

Reno, Nev., June 30.—Women will be welcome as men at the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Women can buy tickets. This is the first time in the history of the ring that special accommodations have been arranged for women.

Tex Rickard has arranged it so that the most modest woman can see the fight without being compelled to blush under the stares of the multitude. A large number of boxes is being constructed in the arena. Each box is to be curtained off from public view and each is to have its own private entrance. Any society bud possessing a big brother willing to separate himself from the price of a seat can see the big fight.

And why not? Women make up fully a third of the spectators that visit the training camps, and I have observed the interesting fact that they seem to enjoy the bouts even more than the men.

The number of seats reserved for women is not limited. If the demand exceeds present expectations more boxes will be provided.

Mother Is Off for the Fight.

Chicago, Ill., June 30.—Mrs. John P. Henderson, of Passaic, N. J., does not believe in rearing mollycoddles. Mrs. Henderson came to Chicago Tuesday night bringing Eddie Henderson, her 15-year-old son with her. Chicago, she says, is a mere stopping place on the way to Reno, Nev., where the Jeffries-Johnson fight is to be held.

After Mrs. Henderson had registered at a downtown hotel she confided to the clerk of that hotel.

"See," said Mrs. Henderson, displaying three $50 tickets to the ringside, "I'm going to take Eddie to see that fight. I don't believe in bringing up mollycoddles. At Denver my sister, Mrs. Henry Short, will join me and we'll take the boy."

The camp was made up of Mr. and Mrs. Larey's Sunday school class of the Fifth Street M. E. church, South, and during the outing all had an enjoyable vacation.

LOST HIS DIAMOND

STUD VALUED AT $300 TAKEN FROM THE MAYOR OF JEFFERSON CITY, MO.

HAD BEEN ON VISIT TO SEDALIA

Robbery Took Place Between California and Centertown While Riding on a Missouri Pacific Train.

Mayor John F. Heinrichs was robbed of his fine diamond stud, valued at $300. while on his way from Sedalia to this city yesterday afternoon, says the Jefferson City Capital News.

Mr. Heinrichs went to Sedalia to dispose of some property and was on his way home. When he reached California Mr. Heinrichs entered the smoker with the intention of taking a short nap before reaching this city.

He was awakened by a friend who got on the train at Centertown and the two men talked for some little time, neither of them noticing the absence of the stud until Mr. Heinrichs reached to adjust his necktie, when he found the stud gone and part of his shirt torn.

It seems that the party cut the shirt with a sharp knife in order to get the diamond without awakening the owner. Mr. Heinrichs said that aside from the "news butcher" only oe man was in the car at the time when he entered.

The "news butcher," the King says, accosted him several times asking him to buy some fruit, and the king is under the impression that this was done to find if he was awake.

When he arrived here he immediately notified the police, who have taken the matter up with authorities along the line, and no doubt the guilty person or persons will be apprehended.

WED A YEAR AGO TODAY

Six O'clock Dining This Evening in Honor of the Event.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud M. Mrs. Yankee was formerly Miss Bertha B. Dill, a popular Sedalia girl, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. W. Kokendoffer, pastor of the First Christian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Yankee are two of Sedalia's most popular young folks, and every acquaintance will join in wishing them the happiness of celebrating many more wedding anniversaries.

GET HOME QUIETLY

NEW ORDINANCE AT SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, NOW MAKES IT POSSIBLE.

RUBBER SHOES FOR HACK HORSES

They Are Worn on the Front Feet, and Flat Steel Ones on the Hind Feet, So That the Noise Is Easily Deadened.

San Antonio, Texas, June 30.—How to get home unobserved and unafraid in the dark or in the morn's first light has been solved by this city's government in a very efficient manner.

The ordinance making this possible was not passed with this particular object in view, though irate wives say such is the case, but was framed up for the purpose of making jehu's friend less hard on the asphalt pavements which San Antonio's own paving plant is now laying down.

The administration, taking a not entirely unwarranted pride in the product of its street paving outfit, decided a short time ago that all hack horses should wear rubber shoes on the front legs and flat steel ones on the hind legs.

This has proven a godsend to the man who is in the habit of staying up late with sick friends. Instead of going home in a snorting, back-firing taxi, he is now able to translate himself to his front door without the slightest noise.

Taxi operators, in order to meet the competition of the gumshoed horse, are now looking for a muffler that will completely silence their motors.

SUSPECT IS IN CUSTODY

Pending an Investigation as to a Fire at Fred Lange's.

C. Gotwalt, an 18-year-old boy, was arrested last night by J. E. Love, night chief of police, and J. Fred Robertson, an officer, charged with petit larceny, but his hearing was continued today by consent of Police Judge J. C. Connor until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Gotwalt some weeks ago was employed by Fred G. Lange at the latter's store, 304-08 West Main street. The boy worked about five hours and quit. That night Mr. Lange's store was ransacked by a thief, and while the thief was thus engaged the place caught fire, evidently from matches lighted by the intruder in search of money.

Suspicion pointed to Gotwalt, but the latter evaded arrest until last night.

OFF ON A PICNIC TODAY

Sunday School Classes of the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

Several hay wagons, filled with children of the different Sunday school classes of the First Methodist Episcopal church, left at 9 o'clock this morning for the waterworks, south of town, where they are enjoying a picnic.

The party was chaperoned by the pastor, the Rev. Grant A. Robbins, and well filled dinner baskets were taken along to satisfy the young folks' hunger.

They will return early this evening.

Bidding on New School House.

Jerome Moyer, T. H. Johnson, J. E. Heckart and George Suter went to Windsor this morning to offer bids on the new $20,000 High school building to be erected there.

LIVED IN SEDADIA

ONCE PASTOR OF THE SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH IN THIS CITY.

ENTERS MINISTRY AT AGE OF 65

Comes of Famous Lineage—Family Founder Made Baronet By Edward III.—Examination and Ordination Today.

A former pastor of the Second Congregational church of Sedalia was written of as follows in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat this morning:

Probably the oldest candidate for the ministry ever received by Congregationalists in the west will be ordained this evening. Col. F. J. Hart, 65 years old, a civil war veteran, whose life has been one of active business for more than forty years, is to be examined by a council of St. Louis Congregational ministers this afternoon at Olive Branch Congregational church, Sidney street and Missouri avenue, and tonight will be ordained and installed as pastor.

The history of this man, venerable in years, but youthful in energy and zeal for the church, is one of unusual interest. He will be one of the few clergymen in St. Louis who has the right to a coat-of-arms.

This comes down from Stephen Hart, an ancestor, who, in the fourteenth century, in the reign of Edward III. at Lullingston castle, Kent county, England, was made baron for loyalty to the king.

His coat-of-arms, the crest of a castle surmounted by a flaming heart, and bearing the words. "Coevi Fidele," was bestowed for holding his castle for the king's service. Another ancestor, Sir Percival Hart, a member of parliament, is favorably mentioned in the letters of Queen Elizabeth.

The family became Americanized early in the settlement of the Massachusetts Bay colony, and three Hart brothers played a conspicuous part.

Col. Hart was born in Connecticut, his immediate family coming from an ancestor who married a daughter of John Elliott, missionary to the Indians.

One of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, John Hart, is an ancestor, as is the famed Mary Hart, who, in the revolutionary war, unaided in her home, captured six British soldiers. Hart county, Ga., is named in her honor.

Col. Hart served in the civil war four years without a day off duty and wore the sword his great-grandfather Samuel Hart, had worn at the battle of Bennington.

He was in fifteen engagements, including the famous seven days under McClellan. His service ended at Appomattox. He was engaged in railway dining and hotel business in the east for twenty-five years.

About twelve years ago he came west, settling in Joplin, where he became interested in mines. During all his active life he has been concerned with church matters. He assisted in erecting seven Y. M. C. A. buildings. Once, when asked if he had made money, he replied: "I have been too busy making men to make money."

NEW $17,000 BUILDING

George T. Menefee to Erect It at Second and Moniteau.

George T. Menefee, a contractor, whose fine brick building at the northwest corner of Second street and Moniteau avenue was totally destroyed by fire some months ago, has approved plans and specifications prepared by Architect August Helfert for the erection of a $17,000 building on that corner, and will at once let the contract for the work.

The building will be one of the finest in Sedalia when completed. It will be two stories high and will have a frontage on Second street of 135 feet, with 120 feet on Moniteau avenue. Brick and concrete will be the materials used.

The first floor will contain five storerooms, all modern and convenient in every detail. The second floor will be converted into flats of six apartments, each apartment to contain five rooms.

Plate glass will be used for the front storerooms. There will be a large entrance at the corner of the building at Second street and Moniteau avenue.

May Light Fair Grounds.

John T. Stinson, secretary of the Missouri state fair, returned this morning from a visit in St. Louis, where he went to get estimates on the cost of lighting the grounds at night, for the tenth annual exhibition to be given by the association.

Is Lying at Death's Door.

Mrs. George Aultemiller, nee Bessie Olmsted, is at death's door at her home, 651 East Thirteenth street, with bowel trouble. Her condition is such that the final summons is only a question of a short time.

LOOKING FOR HOME

ST. LOUIS GIRL WANTS A TEXAS MAYOR TO GET HER COWBOY HUSBAND.

SHE'S THE MAKING OF GOOD WIFE

Has Written to the Same Official Before, but Heard Nothng, so Thinks it Is Possible She Was Overlooked.

San Antonio, Tex., June 30.—Hardly a day passes without Postmaster Stevens, of this city, receiving a letter in which some fair damsel asks him to find her a cowboy husband.

The last applicant for a sure-enough cowboy is Florence Dorsti, a St. Louis belle, 19, brown hair, blue eyes, fair complexion, five feet five, and a weight of a scant 115 pounds.

Miss Dorsti is looking for a good home and will marry the right party. She has written to the postmaster before, but, possibly, as she explains, has been overlooked. This time she wants him to advertise in the paper having the largest circulation, setting forth, among other things, that she is a good cook and can do housework—is, in short, though she is too modest to even hint at it, the very kind of a girl that a cowboy or any other sort of boy would be looking for.

Of course Postmaster Stevens is quite willing to do all he can, but there is so little he can accomplish. Cowboys are getting extremely scarce in and around this city, some prosaic cowpunchers around the stock yards duly excepted.

But with the latter John is not able to do much, most of them being latter day plebes addicted to the use of chewing tobacco and strong drink.

There are in this city also a few Sunday cowboys, who chew gum, use hair oil and have their mugs massaged at the beauty parlors. All this places Postmaster Stevens in a tight fix, and he would appreciate very much if the maidens looking for cowboy and other husbands would pass him up.

He suggests that all those who have contemplated writing to him address the postmasters at points closer to the cattle country, that being west and south of here.

HOME FROM FISHING TRIP

Quartet of Sedalia Young Men Returned Last Night.

Thomas Aloysius Hurley, the New York Life Insurance writer; Frank Gross, of the J. A. Lamy Manufacturing company; John P. Cross, the capitalist, and Will Croff, the train dispatcher, returned last night from a two days' outing, fishing and hunting south of Smithton.

Their catches include more than fifty pounds of fish, a severe cold and a mild attack of "something" bordering on the ancient hookworm.

The party nearly froze in the open air Wednesday night, nevertheless enjoyed the trip immensely.

CHURCH'S GOOD SHOWING

That of Which the Rev. Grant A. Robbins, D. D., Is Pastor.

The second quarterly conference of the First M. E. church was held at that edifice last night, at which it was reported that the average attendance at the Sunday school services for the past three months was 310, a most remarkable showing.

The financial report showed that the basket contributions for a similar period exceeded last year's collections for the same time by $163.

NOT ALL JEFFRIES

THERE ARE NOT A FEW PEOPLE WHO BELIEVE THAT JACK JOHNSON WILL WIN.

JAMES COFFROTH AMONG THEM

He Is the Leading Fight Promoter of San Francisco—If the Negro Was a White Man He'd Be the Favorite.

Reno, Nev., June 30.—The Johnson stock boomed immensely last afternoon, when James Coffroth, the king of 'Frisco fight promoters, made a public statement in which he declared that Johnson would win.

Men who believe in Coffroth, and there are many in this town, and who had been favoring Jeffries' end of the going, when they heard his verdict immediately changed and as a result the betting from now on will be far more brisk than before.

There are other prominent sportsmen who are picking Johnson to win, and there are others like Mike Murphy, famous Pennsylvania coach, who will not commit themselves for fear of hurting Jeffries' feelings. Down in their hearts they fear that the negro will cop the bacon, but are prejudiced against him.

Eddie Smith, the veteran fight referee of Oakland, said yesterday:

"I am afraid that I will let my prejudice lead me into believing that Jeffries is in better condiion than he really is. I still believe that he will win, but, boys, don't overlook the fact that the negro is one great fighter himself."

There are hundreds of other veterans of the ring here who feel the same way.

Johnson is growing in popularity here each day, as far as the betting is concerned.

In his daily workouts I have watched Johnson closely and I consider that he shows a wonderful defense, a hard wollop and is in marvelous condition, and, furthermore, he has boxed enough number of rounds in many of the workouts to show that he can stand a long, hard, grueling battle of many rounds.

Jeffries works but occasionally and breathes fairly hard, but his workouts have never yet been of such length that it would test his real ability to stand a long, hard grind, although the critics who have watched him closely declare that he can. There is no question but that if the negro were a white man the odds would favor him a least 10 o 8.

The ebony hue is what prejudices the minds of the gamblers against him, and it may cause the sinking of a barrel of gold by the same prejudiced gamblers when the battle has been fought.

I am not advising anybody how to bet, but to me Jeffries does not really look like a 2 to 1 choice. The gambling on this battle up to date has been the lightest of any fight of importance in the history of the ring. It is beginning now, though, and it will be strong up to the fight.

Train loads of fans are arriving hourly and the hotels are all flooded: they have even got cots in the hallways of private residences. Residents are even renting cots in their dining rooms. All empty halls and stores are being filled with cots, and by Sunday every cot or place where a cot might be placed will be taken. Hundreds of cot beds have been sent here from 'Frisco to accommodate the mammoth crowds. Prices are still remaining normal and it is believed that no further advance will be made.

THEFT OF A GOLD WATCH

Mrs. S. A. Dickerson Reported it to the Authorities Today.

An unknown negro attempted to sell a solid gold watch at A. L. Dickman's jewelry store this morning, but after the proprietor had refused to buy the timepiece the negro left.

He had no sooner left the store than Mrs. S. A. Dickerson, of 1606 East Broadway, notified the police of the disappearance of the timepiece, which she accused the negro of having stolen.

Deputy Constable M. L. Brown secured a description of the negro and traced him to the southwestern suburbs of the city, but the fugitive escaped.

NEAR THE TRUTH.

According to the testimony presented before the grand jury in Springfield, Ill., in the bribery investigation now going on, a witness was told by one of the state senators that if a certain bill was reported out of committee it would take at least $10,000 as "attorneys' fees." In other words, the senator made it clear to this man that if he desired to secure the passage of the bill in question that the committee would have to be paid for their report under the thin disguise of paying some attorney to appear before the committee and point out the advantages of such a law when spread upon the statute books of Illinois. This has a plausible ring to it and seems to have come from a source dangerously near the head of the fountains which feed the springs of legislation.

The work of the Illinois general assembly, as well as every other legislative body, is accomplished in committee. When the organization is perfected all bills are at once referred to a committee. The members of the committee are supposed to go over the bills in a judicious manner getting at the subject matter contained therein. Oftentimes there are half a dozen bills in reference to a single proposition introduced by as many members. A new bill may be drafted to cover the features of legislation needed and the others "left to die in committee," being heard of never more.

Or if the desired legislation does not commend itself to the committee it will never be heard of again, the smothering process being a most effective one. The member who introduces the bill may fight and fume as he pleases, but he is helpless. Other members will not join in with him to get his bill out of committee, as it jeopardizes bills they may have pending in the committee, and thus spoil their plans.

A bill once referred to a committee can no more be gotten before the house, except on a report from that committee, than any other impossible thing can be done. Here is where the "attorney fees" suggested by the senator came in.

Attorneys or lobbyists skilled in such matters can be retained to go before the committee and present the reasons for or against the bill, as those who wish its passage or defeat may desire. It is in this wise that the "attorney fees" subterfuge comes in. No one really in touch with a legislature believes that an attorney or lobbyist s allowed to keep all the money. Committee members make him come across with "theirs," and that is all there is to it. It has been a matter of common repute for a good many years that certain bills introduced in each session were worth a certain sum for the "killing."

It is not alone common grafters and lobbyists of the standing of the men now accused who engage in this work. Attorneys and others who stand high look upon this as a legitimate form of employment, though they do not have the distribution of the "sweetening" for the members. To secure a remedy for this class of grafting, which is the most extensively practiced, in all probability, of any which transpires in the legislatures, is a hard problem. It is impossible to secure any other method of enacting legislation, as the business is too voluminous to be handled on the floor of the legislative hall.

So long as men are nominated and elected to legislatures who are not above suspicion, just so long will the "attorney fee" graft be put across from term to term for the effecting and affecting of legislation.

EXPENSIVE PRIMARIES.

Much money may be spent by a candidate in a primary election.

It cost Joeph C. Sibley $40,698.83 to win the republican nomination for congress in the Twenty-eighth district of Pennsylvania. Mr. Sibley received 10,446 votes at the primaries and each vote represented an expenditure of nearly $4. As his plurality was only 689 it is fair to say that his nomination was brought about by the sheer use of money.

At the primaries in the Thirtieth district of Pennsylvania John Dalzell spent $9,200, most of which was contributed by manufacturers. The combined expenditures of Sibley and Dalzell in these two districts were nearly $50,000. Their combined salaries as representatives in congress for two years will be only $30,000. Their nominations, therefore, cost almost $20,000 more than the emoluments of their offices, exclusive of mileage and stationery allowances.

No system of direct primaries can be safely established without a drastic corrupt practices act limiting the amount of money that can be lawfully used in obtaining a nomination.

It is not enough that such a law merely restricts the purpose for which money can be used. The total sum expended must be limited as well. To permit a candidate to pay more for his nomination than the salary of the office is to invite corruption of the most wide-reaching and demoralizing kind. A corrupt boss is bad enough but when the electorate itself is debauched, what hope is left?

THE Y. M. C. A. BOOM.

Sioux City, the largest town in Iowa, where the Y. M. C. A. does not own its home, is now in the midst of an interesting campaign, the object of which is the raising of $100,000 for the Sioux City "Y."

In a few days the first half of the required amount was raised, and no doubt the second half will be forthcoming on schedule time. The Y. people have this business of raising funds down to a perfect system, and there are no cases on record where they failed to get the required sum within the time originally agreed upon.

HOT WEATHER DONT'S.

The rules of health for hot weather are: Don't worry, don't over-eat, don't over-drink, don't over-do. The main thing is to keep cool—that is, cool mentally. Over-exertion taxes a person more during hot weather than it does when the temperature is mild.

THE GROCER

it is injurious to sprint after a car at a mile a minute gait in the summer time, and then one should cut down one's supply of food. Meat is stimulating and increases the heat of the body. Drinking too much is as bad as eating too much, and many of the cooling fluids that people put into their stomachs in hot weather in the endeavor to keep cool have just the opposite effect.

It costs our railroads about a million dollars a day for the single item of fuel, and a quarter of that is said to be wasted. Increased economy in this respect might be made to bear a good part of the burden which is to be shifted to increased rates.

Senator Burton, of Ohio, has announced authoritatively that he expects to remain a bachelor as long as he lives. There is, of course, no law against a bachelor thinking he is living.

It can be said of a woman that she is not a hopeless man hater as long as she believes anything that any man says.

A woman may gain a man's love all at one bound, bu she is pretty apt to lose it on the installment plan.

It would probably be just as easy to love a rich girl as a poor one if here wasn't so much competition.

The man who takes his time isn't usually satisfied with simply taking his own time.

Socialism is not so great a menace, however, as the high price of beefsteak.

A Poor Motto.

Baron Takahira was talking to a reporter in Ann Arbor about the Japanese character.

"To say that the Japanese is only a living piece of commercialism is all wrong," he declared. "The Japanese are chivalrous and kind. But too often men accuse them of living up literally to the Yorkshire motto.

"The selfish and despicable motto adopted by a certain hard, narrow type of Yorkshireman is, you know:

See all, hear all and say nowt;
Eat all, sup all and pay nowt;
And if that does owt for nowt,
Do it for thysen.

GIRL A CANDIDATE

PLATTSBURG, MO., BELLE IS IN THE RACE FOR OFFICE OF CIRCUIT CLERK.

THREE MEN ARE OPPOSING HER

Miss Alice Berkeley Seeks Democratic Nomination — Shakes Hands With Voters Under Chaperonage of Her Father.

Plattsburg, Mo., June 30.—Clinton county is excited over the race for clerk of the circuit court, in which Miss Alie Berkeley, a belle of Plattsburg, is contending against three mere men, Ed L. Scott, A. E. Stone and George C. Sparks, for the democratic nomination.

Miss Berkeley is the daughter of W. H. Berkeley, the present circuit clerk, and one of the most popular democrats of Clinton county. She is young and pretty, but declares she will not urge these advantages against her opponents.

Miss Berkeley declines to discuss woman's suffrage or even to intimate whether she believes the members of her sex should be entitled to vote. She thinks, however, women have as much right as men to hold office.

"I am not asking the women to help me," she said, "because they can't vote and there is no use worrying about the future just now. Of course, there are some women whose word is law with their husbands, and I shall probably not overlook them in my campaign."

Thus far Miss Berkeley has not taken to the stump. She shakes hands with the voters, under the chaperonage of her father, and usually wins them with a sweet smile.

Miss Berkeley dates her entrance into politics from the last gubernatorial campaign, when she and about a dozen other girls, high school and college students, formed the Plattsburg Girls' Cowherd club.

KNIFE STUCK IN THROAT

A Twelve-Year-Old Boy Came Near Losing His Life.

Perry Williams, 12 years old, who works in the store for A. T. Dorsey & Son, happened to an accident Monday evening, which in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred would have resulted seriously if not fatally, says the Houstonian.

Perry had left his pocket knife lying on a barrel, with the blade half open and standing straight up.

He walked over to get the knife and as he reached for it he stumbled over something and fell on the knife, the blade, which was very sharp, penetrating his neck to the depth of an inch or more.

The blade entered directly between the large artery and the windpipe, and a half inch either way might have proven fatal to the lad.

After the accident the plucky little lad walked to the doctor's office, where the wound was sterilized and dressed.

THE NUMBERS ON "AUTOS"

Must Be Rigid, According to an Ordinance at San Antonio.

San Antonio, Texas, June 30—Hereafter automobile numbers in this city must not be suspended from straps or chains or fastened by any other method than one making the number absolutely rigid when the car is in motion.

Some drivers recently thought it well to fasten their number by a single strap just for the purpose of rendering them unrecognizable.

During the hearing of a complaint arising from this the police discovered that there is an ordinance to the effect that all automobile numbers must be rigid, and on the following day fourteen violators of this law were arrested.

REPTILE HAD 17 RATTLES

This Is One of the Products of the Lone Star State

San Antonio, Texas, July 30.—A rosebush belonging to Charles Muth, of this city, came near having other thorns than those usually associated with it.

Mr. Muth was stooping over the bush to pick some flowers when he heard a suspicious noise and saw a five-foot rattler coil for a strike right under it.

Before the man had an opportunity to get fully out of harm's way the reptile had lanced itself against him, failing to bury its fangs, however.

A garden spade soon put a quietus on the snake, and Mr. Muth is now in possession of a seventeen-rattle tail, claimed to be a beauty in its line.

TRIP TO COUNTRY

SEVENTEEN MEMBERS OF PHILATHEA SOCIETY VISITED HUGHESVILLE.

GUESTS OF MISS MAYME FOWLER

They Took Pictures, Had a Musical Contest in Which Four Prizes Were Awarded, Then Sat Down to Fine Meal.

Seventeen members of the Philathea society of the Broadway Presbyterian church, chaperoned by Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Fulkerson, returned at 9:25 o'clock last night from Hughesville, where, during the afternoon and evening, they were royally entertained at the country home of Miss Mayme Fowler, a popular Sedalia school teacher and a member of the class.

The party left Sedalia at 2:55 o'clock last afternoon. On reaching Hughesville they were met at the train by comfortable hay wagons and taken to the Fowler home, where the early part of the evening was spent in taking pictures.

Afterwards a delightful musical program was enjoyed, followed by a musical contest, in which four handsome prizes were awarded the winners.

After the supper hour thirty-three guests sat down in a grove near the Fowler home to partake of a delicious country supper, with fried chicken and everything else good to eat.

After the dining, which was one of excellence in every particular, the guests spent the remainder of the evening socially, after which they were taken to the train in hay wagons, reaching home at 9:25 o'clock last night.

LETTER WAS HIS UNDOING

Poplar Bluff Man's Wife Charges Husband With Bigamy.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., June 30.—John H. Mifflin is in jail here charged with bigamy. His wife at Mound City, Ill., recently found a letter in his trunk from another woman and she caused a police investigation here, resulting Tuesday night in wife No. 2 disclosing her marriage to Mifflin in Clayton, Mo., September 11, 1909.

He would leave here frequently on the plea that he must see about work in Illinois and would tell his wife in Illinois he must see about work here. It is charged that he alternated between the two households. He has two children in Mound City. Mifflin admits his guilt.

Poor Milk

is often thought to be responsible for an infant's loss in weight or general poor health. The cause usually is that the child has worms. They get the nourishment in the food and the baby starves, actually starves. White's Cream Vermifuge expels the worms and nourishes the child, sure and safe. Price 25 cents. Sold by W. E. TIPS FOR MAKING TAILORED SHIRTWAISTS.

So, with the coming of the spring, one begins to think about replenishing the shirtwaist box, that being of more immediate need than the procuring of frocks, which can well be put off a while until the styles are definitely settled.

A natty model is one made in a reasonably heavy quality of batiste. Over the shoulders are four half-inch tucks of the convention length. But instead of a box-plait of the same material for the front, there is a band of white pique about two and a half inches wide with the edges scalloped instead of simply hemmed.

The sleeve is of the variety called "shirt sleeve," made like those in a man's shirt, but with a flaring, turned-up cuff also scalloped. This waist was finished with a rolling Byron or Dutch collar, scalloped, of course, to match, but this might be replaced by the collar of ordinary cut.

This attractive design can be varied in a number of ways to adapt it for wear with special tailored suits. For instance, the pique might be colored, a faint violet or green or any of those lovely dull tones so much in vogue this year, being pretty. Or, perhaps, the white pique might be embroidered in the colors, and if a small, conventional design in several shades were added to the plain scallop, it would be stunning. Indeed, such a waist with the colors of the embroidery matching the tones of a suit and hat would certainly make a satisfactory, durable and stylish rig for work or shopping. Again, linen either white or colored, might be hemstitched instead of embroidered, and this with featherstitching or a bit of embroidery, such as rows of dots, would be good-looking, too.

Another waist recently made for a woman who always has a number of these stiff models on hand, is braided. This particular blouse is one made with the kimona sleeves (those cut in one piece with the body of the waist) and in place of the box-plait has a piece laid on separately. This, however, is broader at the top and narrows from about three and a half inches there to about an inch less at the bottom.

The cuff is the ordinary shirt cuff, fastened with link buttons, and the collar is on the lines of the embroidered linen ones so much worn with waists of this kind. However, the special one is saved from being indiscriminate by the braiding, which is done with white cotton soutache in a simple conventional design. The piece down the front, the cuffs and collar are all worked with this, the pattern on the first being so arranged that three large pearl buttons that come through buttonholes made of the braid, form a part of the design. On the cuffs, too, the links of oval-shaped pearl, come through holes outlined by the braid and also fit into the design.—Philadelphia Press.

THOMPSON THEN TOOK OWN LIFE

Left a Note Saying That He Had Tried to Make a Good Girl Out of the Woman, but Had Failed, so Would End it All.

Chicago, Ill., June 30.—A young man, who gave the name of William Thompson, at the Leland hotel yesterday shot and killed a handsome young woman who was registered as his wife, and committed suicide.

"I tried to make a good girl of her, but— it can't be done," read a note of explanation written by the man.

The young couple registered at the Leland hotel Tuesday night and left a call for 5 a. m. They appeared to be happy and exchanged pleasantries with the clerk before retiring.

Soon after they had been called yesterday morning two shots were heard. The door of their room was broken open and both were found dead. The girl had been shot through the breast and the man had a bullet wound in his head. A note written by the man was found in the room. It read:

"May God have mercy on me for what I have done. She has broken my heart. I tried to make a good girl of her, but—it can't be done. We will end it together. The wages of sin is death. If there is any love in the heart of the public bury us together."

The bodies were taken to a morgue, and detectives are making an investigation.

"No, ma," answered Tommy from the bathroom, "I'm busy giving your little poodle a bath."

MURDERER MISSED MONEY

More Than $4,000 in House Where Woman Recluse Was Killed.

Leavenworth, Kas., June 30.—Oliver Dougan, a laborer employed in tearing down a house in which Katherine Schultz, an aged recluse, reputed to be wealthy, was murdered and her body cremated a short time ago, late last afternoon discovered a bundle containing $1,968 in silver and currency and $2,600 in bank certificates. The money was rolled up in an old rag which was pinned together with safety pins and was found under an old piano in the room in which the aged woman was murdered.

It is believed that the slayer killed her while trying to force her to reveal the hiding place of this money. Dougan immediately turned the money over to the police, who will make a further search of the house. Mrs. Schultz was a widow and was believed to be worth more than $20,000, most of which was in unrecorded mortgages and notes.

Misfit Name.

Sir Richard Malet's recently issued memoirs give the following as Bismarck's favorite story:

A traveler in the shires rested at noon at a wayside hostelry and took luncheon. When it was finished he asked for his bill. The landlord brought it to him. After casting a glance at it he looked at Boniface and said, 'What is your name?' 'My name,' replied the landlord, 'is Partridge.' 'Ah,' said the traveler, 'by the length of your bill. I should have thought it would have been woodcock!'"—Cleveland Leader.

Free Dyspepsia Sample

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and this these simple remedies cannot do.

There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor bowel circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of natural ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sour stomach, sick headache and similar complaints. Its ingredients will so strengthen and tone the stomach and bowel muscles that they will again do their work naturally, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. Fannie Stuart, Staunton, Va., was a long-time sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became convinced that pills and tablets, salts, "dyspepsia cures," etc., were at best only temporary reliefs. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle, which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, having convinced themselves through the free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.509 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

THE BIBLE BARRED

FROM THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF ILLINOIS BY THE STATE SUPREME COURT.

HOLD NO RELIGIOUS EXERCISES

Reading Scriptures, It Is Held, Implies Instruction on Which Sects Do Not Agree—Victory for Catholics.

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—The supreme court of Illinois has decided that religious exercises, consisting of the reading of the Bible, singing and prayer, can not be held in the public schools of this state, during the time pupils are required to be in attendance.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Catholic residents of Winchester, Scott county, who had protested against the religious exercises held in the public schools of that district.

Their application for mandamus to require the board of education to discontinue the religious services had been denied in the lower court, but the supreme court upholds their contention and directs the writ to issue.

The opinion in the case is written by Justice Dunn. Justices Cartwright and Hand dissent, but have not filed their opinion. The majority opinion is a lengthy document, reciting much of the history of the separation of church and state, and quoting at length from various authorities in support of the decision.

The petition set up that the pupils were required each day to hear portions read from King James' version of the Bible; that they recited the King James version of the Lord's prayer, and that they sang in concert sacred hymns, one of which was mentioned, "Grace Enough for Me."

"If these exercises of reading the Bible, joining in prayer and the singing of hymns were performed in a church," the court says, "there would be no doubt of their religious character, and that character is not changed by the place of their performance. If the petitioners' children are required to join in the acts of worship, as alleged in the petition, against their consent and against the wishes of their parents, their are deprived of the freedom of religious worship guaranteed to them by the constitution.

The wrong arises, not out of the particular version of the Bible or form of prayer used, whether that found in the Douay or King James versions, or out of the songs sung, but out of the compulsion to join in any form of worship. The free enjoyment of religious worship includes freedom not to worship.

"The reading of the Bible in school is instruction. Religious instruction is the object of such reading, but whether it is so or not, religious instruction is accomplished by it. The Bible has its place in school, if it is read there at all, as the living Word of God, entitled to honor and reverence. Its words are entitled to be received as authoritative and final. The reading or hearing of such words can not fail to impress deeply the pupils' minds.

"It is intended and ought to so impress them. They can not hear the Scriptures read without being instructed as to the divinity of Jesus Christ, the trinity, the resurrection, baptism, predestination, a future state of punishment and rewards, the authority of the priesthood, the obligation and effect of the sacraments, and many other doctrines about which the various sects do not agree.

"Granting that instruction on these subjects is desirable, yet the sects do not agree on what instruction shall be given. Any instruction on any one of the subjects is necessarily sectarian because, while it may be consistent with the doctrines of one or many of the sects, it will be inconsistent with the doctrines of one or more of them.

"The petitioners are Catholics. They are compelled by law to contribute to the maintenance of this school and are compelled to send their children to it, or, besides contributing to its maintenance, to pay the additional expense of sending their children to another school. What right have the teachers of the school to teach those children religious doctrine different from that which they are taught by their parents? Why should the state compel them to unlearn the Lord's prayer as taught in their homes and by their church and use the Lord's prayer as taught by another sect?"

MAN WITH A PAST

PETER M. SWOPE, WHOSE BODY LIES BURIED IN OTTAWA, KAS., CEMETERY.

IS MYSTERY REGARDING HIS PAST

His Life Coincided With the History of the Man Elmer Swope Now Claims Was His Father Back in the East.

Ottawa, Kas., June 30.—The body of Peter M. Swope lies buried in Hope cemetery in this city, being brought here immediately after his death in Kansas City in 1900. One son, Frank H. Swope, survived him, according to the burial permit. This member of the Swope family was born in Philadelphia in 1831. He came here immediately after the civil war and was an expressman. He married Mrs. Montgomery, a widow, in 1869.

His connection with the Swope case in Kansas City has often been discussed by those who know him here, as in many instances his life coincided with the life of the man whom Elmer Swope claims to be his father.

At the time of Elmer Swope's birth he would have been just 25 years of age. His extreme reticence about his past has led many to believe more strongly now than when he was living here that he was a "man with a past."

There are no relatives here now and no property interests hindered his removal to Kansas City. He was thought to be comfortably situated, his means being plentiful, but not abundant. It is not known whether his wife is dead. Since the burial of the father the family connections have been lost trace of by the older settlers.

Peter Swope is well remembered here by those who knew him, but there was a curtain drawn over his past and over his affairs, which none of his acquaintances were ever then or have since been able to lift.

Although the burial permit states that he was born in Philadelphia, it is believed by a number of the older settlers that Peter Swope was born in the up-state, as he had at times alluded to that part of Pennsylvania as his boyhood home. He had few friends here, as he made no effort either to make or keep friends.

He was a German and talked that language frequently. He never discussed his private affairs. He was often morose and saved his money, being considered tight-fisted.

BACK BROKE IN RUNAWAY

Rufus Clark, Junior, Met With Serious Accident.

Rufus Clark, Jr., who resides near Wanamaker, was perhaps fatally injured Monday, when a team which he was driving to a binder along the road ran away, says the Houstonian.

No one witnessed the accident and the victim, who was unconscious until last night, was unable to tell.

The first intimation of the affair came when the team, which had kicked loose from the binder, arrived at Clark's home.

Searchers immediately went out and found the unconscious young man.

His neck was broken and his clothes torn nearly from his body, indicating that he had been dragged some distance. His body from the waist down and his legs were paralyzed.

He remained unconscious until last night when he revived somewhat. He also had some slight feeling in his lower limbs.

The accident was a deplorable one, and the physicians hold out little hope for the young man's recovery.

LEAPED 135 FEET

BOY DIVES FROM CENTER SPAN OF BROOKLYN BRIDGE TO RIVER FOR $250.

THE FIRST TO PERFORM THE FEAT

Lad's First Words Are, "Gee, but I Hit Hard"—Turned Like a Pinwheel. Say Those Who Saw Him Dive.

New York, June 30.—A sharp-featured, undersized youth in ragged swimming trunks, with a skimpy coat and an old pair of trousers thrown over them, dived successfully last afternoon from the center span of Brooklyn bridge to the East river, 135 feet below, for $250 in cash, two new suits of clothes, and whatever fame the world may hold in store for a bridge jumper.

The late Steve Brodie acquired fame as a jumper and long ran a Bowery saloon on the strength of it, but many say it was never proved that Steve really jumped. Several would-be suicides have been fished out of the river unhurt, after jumping, but Otto Eppers is the first to jump with unquestioned witnesses as part of a prearranged plan.

The boy's first words when he was fished out of the river by the crew of a passing tug were, "Gee, but I hit hard."

Eppers is 17 years old, a son of a lithographer. He weighs about 110 pounds. Recently he heard that a Brooklyn merchant was willing to pay $250 to the first man who would jump from the bridge into the East river. Otto had jumped 104 feet from a bridge once before, and the addition of a few more feet never caused him so much as a thought.

He meant to dive in one long, sweeping arc. "But," he told afterwards, "I started to twist and then I couldn't stop."

Passengers on the ferry boats who saw him said he turned like a pinwheel. He was found on his back, half-stunned, and paddling feebly.

S. S. S. CURES OLD BLOOD TROUBLES

The only possible way to cure Contagious Blood poison is to remove the cause by purifying the blood. This is just what S. S. S. does; and it is the only medicine that absolutely and thoroughly cleanses the circulation of every particle of the germs and virus of the disease. Mercury, Potash, and other strong minerals are often used in the hope that such powerful treatment will kill the germs, but this can not be done, and when the mineral medicines are left off the trouble always returns with its aggravating symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, skin eruptions, falling hair, yellow skin splotches, swollen glands, and often running sores. The ability of S. S. S. to cure Contagious Blood Poison comes from its unfailing blood-purifying properties. It goes into the circulation and removes every trace of the infection, makes the blood rich and healthy, and leaves no dregs of the virus to break out later on. S. S. S. does not contain a particle of mineral in any form, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks each of which has a direct and specific action in cleansing the blood. In addition it contains the extracts of certain botanical herbs which make it the finest of all tonics, which is a necessary quality for a medicine in curing Contagious Blood Poison. Home Treatment book, containing much valuable information and instruction to be found nowhere else, will be sent sealed and post paid, free to all who write and request it.

LAWSON BULLETIN

WHAT SECRETARY OF HOME INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION SAYS THIS WEEK.

BOOM FOR KATY RAILWAY SHOPS

Also Bouquets for Ladies' Musical Club, Charlie Guenther and Clem Honkomp, Sr.—The Garnishee Decision.

The following is from the Home Industry association bulletin, issued last evtning by C. C. Lawson, the secretary:

Don't forget to tell any one looking for employment that the M., K. & T. shops need one hundred men, and are not very particular as to their qualifications, either.

The recent supreme court decision with reference to garnishing railroad companies does not change in any way the law from what it has been since 1899, since it merely holds that the law then passed is constitutional—that one must first obtain a judgment for his debt against a railroad employe before a writ of garnishment shall issue.

It is claimed that only seven out of every one hundred men who engage in the mercantile business succeed. Sedalia seems to have the entire seven. One of them, Carl Guenther, the pioneer dry goods merchant, is building a $12,000 three story pressed brick flat on East Third street, thus doing away with the hole in the wall formerly occupied by Honkomp's cigar store, and when finished will be a credit to the city.

Did Honkomp go out of business? Oh, no, he moved into much larger quarters next door, where the famous Golden Rod and State Fair cigars are now turned out by the thousand daily, while the habitues occupy comfortable seats at eventide and through the smoke of these splendid cigars the rich man views his early struggles with more or less pleasure, the poor man sees his ships come in, and the lover sees his affinity in a thousand graceful poses. Try one.

Do Sedalians fully appreciate the efforts put forth by the women of Sedalia whenever anything is undertaken of a public nature? Have we stopped to think just what portion of credit is really due them in the recent campaign? Is there a business organization in the city that could have brought to Sedalia the Damrosch orchestra, at a cost of $1,000, and made money out of the enterprise, as did the Ladies' Musical club? All hail to the Ladies' Musical club. All hail to the women of Sedalia and Pettis county.

Saloon Thought No. 429

Men that we believe KNOW, tell us that every saloon we have, will average collecting $50.00 a day. This makes us spend $1,500.00 a day for beer and whisky. That makes $9,000.00 a week, or nearly $500,000.00 a year. That would build TEN Y. M. C. A. buildings every year. In only FOUR YEARS (every time we elect a president) we would have FORTY Y. M. C. A. buildings. Suppose we would have a compaign like we had for the Y. M. C. A. every forty days year in and year out, it would be very plain why we were short of money and why collections were slow, and why we are not growing as we should, but when it goes for BOOZE, and fills our jails, criminal courts, poor farms, etc., etc., then it is all right, and in fact we could not prosper without it. Such tommyrot as that—and yet a majority of our citizens VOTE for it to go on, and professional men will give their time and influence and brain power to hurd up the purchasable vote and line them up with this robbery, and then accept a fee for a week's work to hang this burden on us for FOUR YEARS. Just because we get ONE dollar back for every $25.00 they tell us it is "GOOD BUSINESS." We certainly are living through the mercy of God, for certainly such pin-heads could not exist WITHOUT God's mercy. With all this robbery for fifty years, "BUSINESS MEN" scratch their heads and wonder why some one don't buy their property. Honestly when we think of this foolishness, we wonder how on earth we have prospered as we HAVE, and certainly it shows that our resources are almost unlimited. Where on earth would we have been if we had not been handicapped in this way? Some one dare to guess.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

General Manager A. W. Sullivan, accompanied by other officials of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain, spent yesterday in Little Rock, inspecting the Baring Cross shops.

Relative to the machinists' strike Mr. Sullivan stated that with the closing of the conference the latter part of May at St. Louis, at which President O' Connell was present as the representative of the strikers, the period of reinstatement passed and that when the machinists return to the service, if they ever do, it will be as individuals and not as members of the Machinists' Union.

"There will be no settlement with the Machinists' Union," said he. "Such men as are competent and who have conduced themselves in a business like manner in his affair may return to work, as there are vacancies for them, and there are vacancies at this time."

FANATICS IN JAIL

They Are Charged With Swindling Man Out of $1,200.

Atchison, Kan., June 30.—Will Moody, of Cow Island, below Atchison was arrested yesterday, charged with complicity in swindling William Klee, of Topeka, out of $1,200.

Ismael Israel Juda Dennis is in jail in Topeka on the same charge. Deputy sheriffs from Topeka and Atchison raided Moody's place on the island yesterday and brought him to Atchison and he was taken to Topeka last evening.

By means of a "covenant," it is said, Klee was induced to give up his money to Moody and Dennis. Moody seems to have gotten his share, for Klee purchased him a team in Topeka and on the way to Cow Island Moody purchased nine head of cattle and later bought a launch to run between Atchison and the island. Moody also has a church name in the Restored Church of the Messiah. It is "Abraham Israel Juda."

These religious fanatics are said to teach that about 144,000 of their followers are to inherit the earth. Moody isn't very well posted about the Bible and doesn't act like a fanatic, although it is reported he will plead insanity.

TOUCHED FOR SPARKLER

Dashing Brunette Got the Diamond of a Mayor.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 30.—Gertrude Volmer, described to the police by Mayor Erdman, of Oblong, Ill., as a dashing brunette, was arrested yesterday, charged with lifting a $1,000 diamond scarf pin he was wearing Tuesday night when he topped a "joy ride" with a nice dinner at a downtown cafe.

The mayor came here to study municipal problems. Study may have made him lonesome. At any rate, a short distance from his hotel the "dashing brunette" loomed up. He was willing to chat with him.

She was carrying an auto coat. Mayor Erdman proposed a ride. She consented. They rode for a couple of hours and had dinner.

Gertrude twisted the scarf pin from the manly bosom of the mayor and hiked. The mayor reported it to the police. They laid for Gertrude. She had the pin when she reached home and the police locked her up on the charge of grand larceny.

DOG KILED KEEPING VIGIL

Shows Distemper After 13 Days' Watch at Open Cavein.

Joplin Mo., June 30.—After faithfully maintaining his vigil for thirteen days beside the open cavein south of Joplin where many still believe his master's body lies weighted in the water fifty feet deep, the little brown Spaniel whose actions have caused an entire neighborhood, fell victim to distemper yesterday and was killed in the fear that he might develop hydrophobia.

The dog, a stranger in the neighborhood, was noticed first almost two weeks ago, standing at the edge of the huge water filled hole, gazing through into its murky depths. After several days had passed residents instituted an investigation on the theory that a man had either fallen or been thrown into the hole. Grab hooks were used, but the uneven nature of the bottom made their aid of little use.

A man's coat and hat were found, but no body has been discovered. The dog refused to leave the vicinity.

Husband in Kentucky Killed Wife, Then Suicided.

Louisville, Ky., June 30.—In a maddened passion of strange jealousy, James Bird, 55, last night shot and killed his wife in their West End home, shot twice at his 17-year-old son, who rushed to his mother's aid, and ended the wild tragedy by first shooting himself and then cutting his throat.

Mrs. Bird died instantly, with a bullet in the heart, while the vengeful husband died a few minutes after the shooting on the way to the hospital. The tragedy is the latest of six in the year 1910 in which wives have been slain by their husbands in Louisville.

SURPRISED HER HUSBAND

In Bedroom With Daughter, and the Woman Shot Him.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 30.—Mrs. Annis Flusher returned unexpectedly to her home in Braddock yesterday afternoon and found her husband, she says, in a bedroom with their 14-year-old daughter.

The father had disrobed the child, and, the wife claims, was attacking her savagely, while the child was screaming for help.

Mrs. Flusher grabbed a revolver and fired, the bullet entering Flusher's right eye.

Flusher is in the hospital and cannot live. The woman is in custody, but was not placed in a cell.

MASHER ARRESTED

E. W. COOPER, STRIKING MACHINIST HELPER, TAKEN IN BY A SPECIAL OFFICER.

TOO FRESH WITH A VISITING LADY

Was Fined $50 by Police Judge James C. Connor This Morning, and Went to Jail in Default of Payment.

(From Thursday's Daily)

E. W. Cooper, a striking machinist helper, whose home is at Springfield, Mo., was arrested at 10:20 o'clock last night by W. E. Rickey, special agent for the Missouri Pacific railway, and committed to the city jail, with a charge of "mashing" preferred against him.

Cooper was arraigned before Police Judge James C. Connor this morning. The charge was read to him, and he at once entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $50, and in default of payment was committed to the city jail to serve the fine.

The complaint was filed by Miss Emma McMonigle, of Carterville, Mo. Miss McMonigle had been at Sweet Springs and was on her way home.

She was awaiting Missouri Pacific train No. 9 and was occupying a seat in the ladies' waiting room at the passenger station.

At 10:30 o'clock Cooper espied her and went into the waiting room and took a seat beside the lady. He struck up a conversation and learned the lady's name, also her destination. Miss McMonigle was ignorant of the man's intentions, and when he said he was from Carterville and knew many people there she began conversing with him.

Miss McMonigle named several residents of Carterville and Cooper said he knew all of them. He then suggested that she go walking with him. She declined, politely at first, but his repeated efforts to have her go caused her to complain to Night Ticket Agent Cooper.

Special Agent Rickey appeared on the scene shortly afterwards, and Mr Cooper related the circumstances. Officer Rickey interviewed the lady and learned her story. He then placed Cooper under arrest.

VISITED THE LAREY CAMP

Mrs. A. L. Dickman's Class of Southern Methodist Church.

(From Thursday's Daily)

Mrs. A. L. Dickman delightfully entertained her Sunday school class of the Fifth Street M. E. church, South, at Larey's camp, on Flat Creek, Thursday, each guest in attendance enjoying the affair immensely.

Various amusements were provided, and during the afternoon Messrs. Dickman and DeJarnette, in automobiles, drove to the outing to take part in the enjoyment.

SOLD COAT FOR 50 CENTS

Negro Had Stolen It From Patient at Katy Hospital.

Henry Leftige, a negro employed at the M., K. & T. railway hospital, was arraigned before Justice F. W. Clark at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, charged with stealing a coat from C. Dawson, a patient at the hospital, and selling the garment for fifty cents.

Leftige admitted his guilt and was fined $1 and costs, which he arranged to pay.

The Smithton Team Defeated.

The Smithton ball club was defeated at Sweet Springs Thursday by a score of 3 to 1. Duvenick, of the Sedalia Cubs, pitched for Smithton, and lost his first game of the year. WOMEN AT BATTLE

THEY WILL BE PERMITTED TO WITNESS THE FIGHT AT RENO, NEVADA.

HAVE SPECIAL BOXES FOR THEM

Mother Living in New Jersey Stops Off in Chicago With Her 15-Year-Old Son, Who She Is Taking to the Ringside.

Reno, Nev., June 30.—Women will be welcome as men at the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Women can buy tickets. This is the first time in the history of the ring that special accommodations have been arranged for women.

Tex Rickard has arranged it so that the most modest woman can see the fight without being compelled to blush under the stares of the multitude. A large number of boxes is being constructed in the arena. Each box is to be curtained off from public view and each is to have its own private entrance. Any society bud possessing a big brother willing to separate himself from the price of a seat can see the big fight.

And why not? Women make up fully a third of the spectators that visit the training camps, and I have observed the interesting fact that they seem to enjoy the bouts even more than the men.

The number of seats reserved for women is not limited. If the demand exceeds present expectations more boxes will be provided.

Mother Is Off for the Fight.

Chicago, Ill., June 30.—Mrs. John P. Henderson, of Passaic, N. J., does not believe in rearing mollycoddles. Mrs. Henderson came to Chicago Tuesday night bringing Eddie Henderson, her 15-year-old son with her. Chicago, she says, is a mere stopping place on the way to Reno, Nev., where the Jeffries-Johnson fight is to be held.

After Mrs. Henderson had registered at a downtown hotel she confided to the clerk of that hotel.

"See," said Mrs. Henderson, displaying three $50 tickets to the ringside, "I'm going to take Eddie to see that fight. I don't believe in bringing up mollycoddles. At Denver my sister, Mrs. Henry Short, will join me and we'll take the boy."

LOST HIS DIAMOND

STUD VALUED AT $300 TAKEN FROM THE MAYOR OF JEFFERSON CITY, MO.

HAD BEEN ON VISIT TO SEDALIA

Robbery Took Place Between California and Centertown While Riding on a Missouri Pacific Train.

(From Thursday's Daily)

Mayor John F. Heinrichs was robbed of his fine diamond stud, valued at $300, while on his way from Sedalia to this city yesterday afternoon, says the Jefferson City Capital News.

Mr. Heinrichs went to Sedalia to dispose of some property and was on his way home. When he reached California Mr. Heinrichs entered the smoker with the intention of taking a short nap before reaching this city.

He was awakened by a friend who got on the train at Centertown and the two men talked for some little time, neither of them noticing the absence of the stud until Mr. Heinrichs reached to adjust his necktie, when he found the stud gone and part of his shirt torn.

It seems that the party cut the shirt with a sharp knife in order to get the diamond without awakening the owner. Mr. Heinrichs said that aside from the "news butcher" only one man was in the car at the time when he entered.

The "news butcher," the King says, accosted him several times asking him to buy some fruit, and the king is under the impression that this was done to find if he was awake.

When he arrived here he immediately notified the police, who have taken the matter up with authorities along the line, and no doubt the guilty person or persons will be apprehended.

THIEVES AT WORK

NORTH PROSPECT, QUINCY AND STEWART AVENUES VISITED LAST NIGHT.

TOOK A WATCH FROM WILL RUSS

Carried a Trunk From the Home of G. G. Thedrick—Failed to Gain an Entrance at Home of J. E. Rector.

(From Wednesday's Daily)

Amateur thieves visited North Prospect, Stewart and Quincy avenues last night, gaining entrance to two homes and failing at a third, but the total amount of booty taken amounted in value to 98 cents and that not in cash, only a Waterbury watch.

The home of Will Russ, of the firm of Lumpe & Russ, living at 406 North Stewart avenue, was first visited, entrance being gained through a window. Mr. Russ missed nothing except a pair of trousers, which he found on a post one block away, minus a Waterbury watch.

G. G. Thedick, a Missouri Pacific carpenter, residing at 308 North Quincy avenue, was next visited. Entrance was gained in a similar manner. The intruder carried a trunk out of the room occupied by Mr. Thedick and wife, but took nothing.

At Mr. Russ' home a large piece of timber was left in the house, while at the Thedick home the intruder left a rake.

The same individual, it is believed, tried to gain entrance to the home of John E. Rector, 401 North Stewart avenue, but failed. One of the family was awakened about 1 o'clock this morning and saw a man on the outside. The intruder was frightened away.

SUSPECT IS IN CUSTODY

Pending an Investigation as to a Fire at Fred Lange's.

(From Thursday's Daily)

C. Gotwalt, an 18-year-old boy, was arrested last night by J. E. Love, night chief of police, and J. Fred Robertson, an officer, charged with petit larceny, but his hearing was continued today by consent of Police Judge J. C. Connor until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Gotwalt some weeks ago was employed by Fred G. Lange at the latter's store, 304-08 West Main street. The boy worked about five hours and quit. That night Mr. Lange's store was ransacked by a thief, and while the thief was thus engaged the place caught fire, evidently from matches lighted by the intruder in search of money.

Suspicion pointed to Gotwalt but the latter evaded arrest until last night.

They will return early this evening.

LIVED IN SEDALIA

ONCE PASTOR OF THE SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH IN THIS CITY.

ENTERS MINISTRY AT AGE OF 65

Comes of Famous Lineage—Family Founder Made Baronet By Edward III.—Examination and Ordination Today.

(From Thursday's Daily)

A former pastor of the Second Congregational church of Sedalia was written of as follows in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat this morning:

Probably the oldest candidate for the ministry ever received by Congregationalists in the west will be ordained this evening. Col. F. J. Hart, 65 years old, a civil war veteran, whose life has been one of active business for more than forty years, is to be examined by a council of St. Louis Congregational ministers this afternoon at Olive Branch Congregational church, Sidney street and Missouri avenue, and tonight will be ordained and installed as pastor.

The history of this man, venerable in years, but youthful in energy and zeal for the church, is one of unusual interest. He will be one of the few clergymen in St. Louis who has the right to a coat-of-arms.

This comes down from Stephen Hart, an ancestor, who, in the fourteenth century, in the reign of Edward III. at Lullingston castle, Kent county, England, was made baron for loyalty to the king.

His coat-of-arms, the crest of a castle surmounted by a flaming heart, and bearing the words, "Coevi Fidele," was bestowed for holding his castle for the king's service. Another ancestor, Sir Percival Hart, a member of parliament, is favorably mentioned in the letters of Queen Elizabeth.

The family became Americanized early in the settlement of the Massachusetts Bay colony, and three Hart brothers played a conspicuous part.

Col. Hart was born in Connecticut, his immediate family coming from an ancestor who married a daughter of John Elliott, missionary to the Indians.

One of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, John Hart, is an ancestor, as is the famed Mary Hart, who, in the revolutionary war, unaided in her home, captured six British soldiers. Hart county, Ga., is named in her honor.

Col. Hart served in the civil war four years without a day off duty and wore the sword his great-grandfather Samuel Hart, had worn at the battle of Bennington.

He was in fifteen engagements, including the famous seven days under McClellan. His service ended at Appomattox. He was engaged in railway dining and hotel business in the east for twenty-five years.

About twelve years ago he came west, settling in Joplin, where he became interested in mines. During all his active life he has been concerned with church matters. He assisted in erecting seven Y. M. C. A. buildings. Once, when asked if he had made money, he replied: "I have been too busy making men to make money."

NEW $17,000 BUILDING

George T. Menefee to Erect It at Second and Moniteau.

(From Thursday's Daily)

George T. Menefee, a contractor, whose fine brick building at the northwest corner of Second street and Moniteau avenue was totally destroyed by fire some months ago, has approved plans and specifications prepared by Architect August Helfert for the erection of a $17,000 building on that corner, and will at once let the contract for the work.

The building will be one of the finest in Sedalia when completed. It will be two stories high and will have a frontage on Second street of 135 feet, with 120 feet on Moniteau avenue. Brick and concrete will be the materials used.

The first floor will contain five storerooms, all modern and convenient in every detail. The second floor will be converted into flats of six apartments, each apartment to contain five rooms.

Plate glass will be used for the front storerooms. There will be a large entrance at the corner of the building at Second street and Moniteau avenue.

May Light Fair Grounds.

(From Thursday's Daily)

John T. Stinson, secretary of the Missouri state fair, returned this morning from a visit in St. Louis, where he went to get estimates on the cost of lighting the grounds at night, for the tenth annual exhibition to be given by the association.

LOOKING FOR HOME

ST. LOUIS GIRL WANTS A TEXAS MAYOR TO GET HER COWBOY HUSBAND.

SHE'S THE MAKING OF GOOD WIFE

Has Written to the Same Official Before, but Heard Nothng, so Thinks It Is Possible She Was Overlooked.

San Antonio, Tex., June 30.—Hardly a day passes without Postmaster Stevens, of this city, receiving a letter in which some fair damsel asks him to find her a cowboy husband.

The last applicant for a sure-enough cowboy is Florence Dorsti, a St. Louis belle, 19, brown hair, blue eyes, fair complexion, five feet five, and a weight of a scant 115 pounds.

Miss Dorsti is looking for a good home and will marry the right party. She has written to the postmaster before, but, possibly, as she explains, has been overlooked. This time she wants him to advertise in the paper having the largest circulation, setting forth, among other things, that she is a good cook and can do housework—is, in short, though she is too modest to even hint at it, the very kind of a girl that a cowboy or any other sort of boy would be looking for.

Of course Postmaster Stevens is quite willing to do all he can, but there is so little he can accomplish. Cowboys are getting extremely scarce in and around this city, some prosaic cowpunchers around the stock yards duly excepted.

But with the latter John is not able to do much, most of them being latter day plebes addicted to the use of chewing tobacco and strong drink.

There are in this city also a few Sunday cowboys, who chew gum, use hair oil and have their mugs massaged at the beauty parlors. All this places Postmaster Stevens in a tight fix, and he would appreciate very much if the maidens looking for cowboy and other husbands would pass him up.

He suggests that all those who have contemplated writing to him address the postmasters at points closer to the cattle country, that being west and south of here.

CHURCH'S GOOD SHOWING

That of Which the Rev. Grant A. Robbins, D. D., Is Pastor.

(From Thursday's Daily)

The second quarterly conference of the First M. E. church was held at that edifice last night, at which it was reported that the average attendance at the Sunday school services for the past three months was 310, a most remarkable showing.

The financial report showed that the basket contributions for a similar period exceeded last year's collections for the same time by $163.

WILL PAY $25 REWARD

To Stop Throwing of Glass in the Street With Malicious Intent.

A reward of $25 or the arrest and conviction of any one caught throwing glass in the public streets, with malicious intent, will be offered at tomorrow night's meeting of the Sedalia Automobile club, called to arrange for participating in the Fourth of July street parade.

Mayor J. W. Mellor has issued orders to the police to arrest any one doing such work, and with the reward offered the practice seems on the verge of being discontinued.

NOT ALL JEFFRIES

THERE ARE NOT A FEW PEOPLE WHO BELIEVE THAT JACK JOHNSON WILL WIN.

JAMES COFFROTH AMONG THEM

He Is the Leading Fight Promoter of San Francisco—If the Negro Was a White Man He'd Be the Favorite.

Reno, Nev., June 30.—The Johnson stock boomed immensely last afternoon, when James Coffroth, the king of 'Frisco fight promoters, made a public statement in which he declared that Johnson would win.

Men who believe in Coffroth, and there are many in this town, and who had been favoring Jeffries' end of the going, when they heard his verdict immediately changed and as a result the betting from now on will be far more brisk than before.

There are other prominent sportsmen who are picking Johnson to win, and there are others like Mike Murphy, famous Pennsylvania coach, who will not commit themselves for fear of hurting Jeffries' feelings. Down in their hearts they fear that the negro will cop the bacon, but are prejudiced against him.

Eddie Smith, the veteran fight referee of Oakland, said yesterday:

"I am afraid that I will let my prejudice lead me into believing that Jeffries is in better condition than he really is. I still believe that he will win, but, boys, don't overlook the fact that the negro is one great fighter himself."

There are hundreds of other veterans of the ring here who feel the same way.

Johnson is growing in popularity here each day, as far as the betting is concerned.

In his daily workouts I have watched Johnson closely and I consider that he shows a wonderful defense, a hard wollop and is in marvelous condition, and, furthermore, he has boxed enough number of rounds in many of the workouts to show that he can stand a long, hard, grueling battle of many rounds.

Jeffries works but occasionally and breathes fairly hard, but his workouts have never yet been of such length that it would test his real ability to stand a long, hard grind, although the critics who have watched him closely declare that he can. There is no question but that if the negro were a white man the odds would favor him a least 10 o 8.

The ebony hue is what prejudices the minds of the gamblers against him, and it may cause the sinking of a barrel of gold by the same prejudiced gamblers when the battle has been fought.

I am not advising anybody how to bet, but to me Jeffries does not really look like a 2 to 1 choice. The gambling on this battle up to date has been the lightest of any fight of importance in the history of the ring. It is beginning now, though, and it will be strong up to the fight.

Train loads of fans are arriving hourly and the hotels are all flooded: they have even got cots in the hallways of private residences. Residents are even renting cots in their dining rooms. All empty halls and stores are being filled with cots, and by Sunday every cot or place where a cot might be placed will be taken. Hundreds of cot beds have been sent here from 'Frisco to accommodate the mammoth crowds. Prices are still remaining normal and it is believed that no further advance will be made.

THEFT OF A GOLD WATCH

Mrs. S. A. Dickerson Reported it to the Authorities Today.

(From Thursday's Daily)

An unknown negro attempted to sell a solid gold watch at A. L. Dickman's jewelry store this morning, but after the proprietor had refused to buy the timepiece the negro left.

He had no sooner left the store than Mrs. S. A. Dickerson, of 1606 East Broadway, notified the police of the disappearance of the timepiece, which she accused the negro of having stolen.

Deputy Constable M. L. Brown secured a description of the negro and traced him to the southwestern suburbs of the city, but the fugitive escaped.

ALL WORK TOGETHER FOR GOOD

The charity problem in every community is probably as vexatious a one as any that comes before the people for solution.

On this, as on all other questions, there are doubtless as many opinions and theories as there are channels of aid—and then one other, for we have always with us those who do not believe in giving to any cause or to any individual, no matter how deserving or distressing the cause or case may be.

And so, wherever there is poverty or sickness, ignorance or vice, are to be found men and women who are touched by the scenes of sorrow that they witness or the tales of suffering that they hear, and they give freely and gladly, to the end that the burdens of the poor and unfortunate may be lessened, and that some gleam of gladness, some ray of comfort may come into the lives of those less fortunate than themselves. There are others, also, who feel the call of humanity so strongly that, in addition to giving of their means, they devote much of their time to personal work among the lowly, with a beautiful spirit of abnegation that can not but win tribute from all who know of the effort made and results accomplished.

But in this field of endeavor, as in all human efforts, opinions differ as to ways and means, as to who most should receive aid, as to what particular suffering and distress should be alleviated first, or which should be given the greatest amount of attention and material assistance. These differences are honest ones and should be respected. Particular circumstances appeal to particular individuals, and according to environment or education the hearts of some are touched more deeply and tenderly by certain phases of misfortune than by others, but all are the result of that Divine spark of goodness implanted in the souls of men that by expression in deeds becomes the outward and visible signs of immortality.

And so we have a great many branches of charity. Everywhere good men and women live, and everywhere in consequence good is constantly being done. What matters it if all can not believe that a certain line is not the best, so long as results are obtained and suffering humanity is benefited?

All of us are not of one faith; some believe in this creed, other believe in that, and even in the two great divisions of christian faith there are divisions and even sub-divisions, but who is there so reckless and devoid of truth as to assert that the churches are of no avail, that their work comes to naught, that they do not uplift and bless through life and in death those who flee to their portals for surcease of sorrow and consolation in grief?

This being true, no one should condemn any effort toward alleviation of distress of whatever form, even though work along that special line does not appeal to them. Some one believes in it, otherwise it would not be, and so long as good comes, then it is well.

In Sedalia there are various plans by which help is being given the helpless. The Associated Board of Charities, the City hospital, Melita Day Nursery, Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army and others perhaps, and it is the duty of all, regardless of personal choice, to encourage each, giving to all, if possible, but if only one can receive direct assistance, at least to encourage in every possible way those others in which personal interest is not so great. By this will all be doing the will of Him who said, "Ye have the poor always with you," and at the same time bring to their own lives a blessing and benediction.

JUDGE JOHN F. PHILIPS.

The Kansas City Journal of Friday contained a splendid tribute to the personal worth and judicial eminence of Judge John F. Philips, a former Sedalian, who on Saturday voluntarily retired from the federal bench after twenty-two years of faithful service. The Journal said:

Twenty-two years ago John Finis Philips became a federal judge. Tomorrow he lays down unsmirched the high office which he has adorned with such signal ability and above all with the untarnished integrity of "an upright judge." No higher enconium can be employed in describing a dispenser of justice than to say he has been true to the highest ideals of his profession and the finest traditions of the judiciary. A judge may make mistakes—who does not? But there is neither condonement nor expiation for the crime of unfairness and as a holder of the scales wherein have been weighed the rights of the thousands of litigants whose names appear on the docket of his court Judge Philips has been pre-eminently conspicuous for the unswerving fidelity with which he has adhered to his exalted conception of fairness.

Not second to his reputation for fairness is his standing as a judge per se. A wearer of the ermine may be never so fair and yet leave much to be desired, just as he may be brilliantly learned in the law and yet leave much to be desired. Judge Philips combined in the happiest degree the intellectual attainments which have made him one of the ablest members of the federal judiciary in the country and the dispassionate interpreter of the law who commands the individual respect of every lawyer who ever practiced in his court.

But as a lawyer and a judge, Judge Philips is only imperfectly measured. He is a many sided man who has sustained with honor and dignity many and varied public relations. He has been a member of the bar for fifty-three years and an occupant of the bench, including that of the Kansas City court of appeals twenty-five years. This more tthan half a century's devotion to his profession has obscured the recollection by many, especially the younger generation, of the fact that Judge Philips earned distinction as a soldier and as a publicist long before he donned the judicial ermine. The saddle and a seat in congress preceded the woolsack. As colonel of the Seventh Missouri cavalry he served the union cause valorously during the war and was brevetted a brigadier general.

As a member of the Forty-fourth and Forty-sixth congresses he was distinguished by his broad grasp of public issues. His legal ability added materially to his effectiveness in this connection and in other relations, such as his membership in the Tilden-Hays commission and before that his participation in the state convention which discussed secession of the state from the federal union. In this convention it is a part of the history of the state that it was largely due to his efforts that the tsate was saved to the union. He supplemented this patriotic duty by his subsequent effective service in the military operations connected with the campaign of General Price.

After these troublous times were ended he resumed the practice of his profession and his long association with George G. Vest is one of the bright pages in Missouri's history. It was twenty years after the surrender of Gen. Lee before Judge Philips became a judge of the Kansas City court of appeals, so that his career of judge does not of right completely overshadow the long years of honor and usefulness which he devoted to his native state. As an orator Judge Philips has few equals in the state and his decisions have for a score of years been conspicuous for the purity and effectiveness of their diction as for the soundness of their exposition of the law. The close of such a career is one of those events which, by the happy paradox of the inner truth, are not subjects for regret. Judge Philips lays aside the robes of office with dignity and in the plentitude of his intellectual and physical powers, despite the fact that he has lived three-quarters of a century, during all the presidential administrations between those of Jackson and William H. Taft, inclusive. As soldier and citizen, patriot and judge, lawyer and publicist, orator and friend, statesman and companion Judge Philips has illuminated every position he has filled, public and private. He retires to distinguished privacy with the civic crown of unblemished citizenship resting upon the head that has whitened in the service of his country and his state.

A campfire was made and J. T. Evans and W. L. Shacklett fried ham and cheese, while R. V. Gentry and Lisle Stevenson made coffee. The menu consisted of fried chicken, ham, beef, pickles, salads, cakes, lemonade and in fact, all the good things that farmers' wives know so well how to prepare. Forty-five registered for dinner. Those present were: Mrs. Bettie Adams and children, R. V. Gentry and family, J. T. Evans and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Robinson, Martin Davis and sister, Miss Mary; Miss Lena Williams, Mrs. Bina Scott and children, Mrs. H. M. Jackson, Mary Stine, sisters and brothers; H. C. Kemp and family, W .L. Shacklett and family, Lisle Stevenson, Dr. J. A. Powers, Mrs. T. H. Farris, Paul Crites, Floyd Davis, Wallace Farris, Geo. Steele and family, and Miss Mary O'Bannon, of Sedalia. Miss O'Bannon had the misfortune to fall down an embankment and hurt her arm quite severely. Dr. J. A. Powers was present and dressed the wounded member, at first stating the arm was broken, but later he decided it was not so bad. However, this was the only accident of the day, and all voted the picnic a decided success.

Sermon by CHARLES T RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Three Men and Two Wowen Whom Jesus Loved

Text: "Lazarus' sisters sent unto the Master saying, Lord, he whom thou lovest is sick."—John 11:3.

Correspondence Democrat-Sentinel.

Chicago, Ill., June 28.—Pastor C. T. Russell. of Brooklyn Tabernacle, preached here twice today in Orchestra hall. As usual he had a large and attentive audience. We quote one of his discourses in part as follows:

All men who have any knowledge of Jesus esteem him—Christians, Gentiles and Jews. All men whatever their religious convictions are ready to admit the surpassing personality of the great Nazarene and his wonderful words of life. It is as respects his Messiahship that they differ. However, we submit that if he were not the special servant of Jehovah, the Son of God, as he claimed, sent into the world on a special mission, then he must of necessity have been either a deceived man or a wicked impostor. His wonderful personality and words of justice and wisdom and love contradict the thought that he was either ignorant or a deceiver. Hence the only tenable ground is that he was a deceived man or else that he was indeed the Son of God who acted and spoke and performed miracles under Divine direction and power. We hold that the evidences of his teaching overwhelmingly corroborate the truth of his claims. But here we make a distinction between the claims which our Lord Jesus made for himself and other claims which have been made for him without his sanction and without apostolic or other inspired corroboration.

Let it not be supposed that we are forgetting the length and breadth of Jesus' love for all humanity and a special love for all of his disciples, yea, for all who loved righteousness and sought, as he did, to do the Father's will. In keeping with this was his prayer for his disciples on the night before his crucifixion, in connection with which we read, "Jesus having loved his own, loved them unto the end" (John xiii, 1). And again his statement "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John xv, 13.) And again his statement, "Who is my mother, and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand to his disciples, and said, Behold my mother, and my brethren! For whatsoever shall do the will of my Father which is in Heaven, the same is my brother, and sister and mother" (Matthew xiii, 48-50). These expressions give us a glimpse of the length and breadth of the love of Jesus. But for the present occasion let us consider those persons whom Jesus is said to have specially loved.

"Jesus Beholding Him Loved Him."

The rich young nobleman who came to the Lord said, Rabbi, what good thing shall I do that I may inherit the Kingdom of God? Jesus saith unto him, Thou knowest the commandments . . and he said unto him, Master, all these have I observed from my youth. Then Jesus beholding him, loved him. Jesus lovingly admired the young man who was thus desirous of being in full accord with the Heavenly Father's will. That young man had very much of the Master's own spirit. He wanted to do right and he desired to have the gift of God, eternal life. He thought that he must have merited this by his faithful attention to the Law. Yet he knew that he had not attained to eternal life, that the death sentence was still upon him. He sought counsel of the greatest Rabbi, the greatest Teacher. That Teacher loved so earnest a spirit and proffered him advice on what he still lacked of coming fully up to God's requirements of those who will be granted a place in the Messianic Kingdom, which in "due time' is to bless Israel and, through Israel, all the families of the earth.

In no uncertain terms the Master gave the young man to see that while he had been keeping, probably to the best of his ability, the commandments of the decalogue, he had only imperfectly discerned the meaning of the Divine requirement of love for his neighbor as for himself. The young man was very rich. And to fulfill the requirements of the Law to love his neighbor as himself would have meant not the hoarding of wealth, nor necessarily the distribution of it all, but the wise use of it in the interest of his fellowmen. But to gain a share in the Kingdom would require even more than this. He must take up his cross and become a follower of Jesus—walking in the steps of full obedience to the Divine will. The price was too much for the young man, and he went his way. Jesus merely answered the question but did not urge the young man to thus present himself a living sacrifice to God and his service. Indeed in no case did Jesus ever do more than invite—never did he urge. On the contrary he advised, Sit down first and count the cost of discipleship.

What could we surmise respecting the eternal destiny of this young man who had been striving so earnestly to keep the Law and to gain eternal life, and who turned from Jesus and declined to take up the cross and follow him? Could we suppose that Divine Justice would send such a man to eternal torment under these conditions? If there were such a penalty over him could we suppose that Jesus would have allowed him to go without urging him strenuously, without at least warning him, that by his course he was making the choice of eternal torment? Can we suppose that our Master knew that all the people whom he addressed and who failed to accept his message would be consequently consigned to eternal torture, and that he let them go without urging the matter upon them? We could not so thing! Thank God we are gradually getting free from the bondage of error fastened upon us by those who mistranslated certain words in our Bible.

We get the proper view when we remember that Jesus message at that time was "The Gospel of the Kingdom." He was merely inviting whoever might have the ear to hear and the heart to appreciate the privilege to become associated with himself in the glorious Kingdom for which he told his disciples to pray, "Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." What the rich young man lost was the special privilege of becoming a joint heir with Christ in that Kingdom which, in due time, will be established and whose mission will be the blessing of Israel and the world. It will bring to them "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began" (Acts iii, 19-21).

"He Whom Thou Lovest Is Sick."

Our text stands related to a very wonderful chapter in our Lord's ministry. Jesus with his disciples was about three days' journey from Bethany, the home of Lazarus, Martha and Mary. But they knew his whereabouts, for he was a special friend and their home was his home whenever he was near Jerusalem. Lazarus took seriously ill. But the two sisters, Martha and Mary, feared nothing, since they had such great confidence in Jesus, even to belief in his ability to awaken sleepers from death. They thought it proper to send the Master word respecting Lazarus, but not proper to dictate to him what should be done in the case. Rather they left to himself to decide whether he should speak the word and rebuke the disease or whether he should come to Bethany and take the sick by the hand and say, Arise. The simple message they sent was, "Lord, he whom thou lovest is sick." The beautiful, childlike, simple faith which they exhibited must have been very precious in the Master's sight. Nevertheless Jesus said nothing, and did nothing in the matter for three days. Then he said to his disciples, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth." They did not grasp his meaning until he said to them plainly, Lazarus is dead; and I am glad for your sakes that I was not there. I am glad because it will give me an opportunity to demonstrate to you and through you to all who shall be my disciples in the future the great power of God that is vested in me in respect to the resurrection of the dead.

All Bible students surely have noticed how frequently in the Scriptures the word "sleep" is used as a poetical synonym for death. Abraham slept with his fathers. David slept with his fathers. Prophets, priests and kings are said to have slept with their fathers, whether good or bad. Likewise the New Testament uses the same figure of speech. We read that St. Stephen the martyr, stoned to death, "fell asleep." St. Paul speaks of the church as falling asleep in death and refers to all of our friends, good and bad, who go down into death, as being "asleep in Jesus." He tells us that we need not sorrow for them as others who know not the resurrection hope. All who fall asleep in death because of Adam's transgression and its death sentence have in Jesus a divinely appointed Redeemer who in God's due time is to awaken all the sleeping hosts of Adam's race. All that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of man and come forth. They that have done good (who have secured Divine approval as worthy of eternal life) shall come forth unto the resurrection of life (full perfection); and they that have done evil (that have not secured the Divine approval as being worthy of eternal life) shall come forth in the resurrection for judgment (John v, 28,29) or trial, for discipline, for correction in righteousness during Messiah's reign of 1,000 years.

Coming forth in that judgment time or trial time, all the willing and obedient will eventually be lifted out of sin and death, while those disobedient to the light and opportunity will be again consigned to death—Second Death, everlasting extinction (John v, 28, 29, R. V.).

We have read our Bibles too carelessly in the past and have given too much heed to those who, with less opportunities than ourselfes have grossly misinterpreted its teachings. What did we think respcting this word "sleep," anyway? Did we suppose that both the good and the bad "sleep" in heaven? We were told that the bad would go to a place too warm for sleep. But our own brains and our own Bibles we never thought of using in connection with the subject. Now, when we hearken to the Word of God, how plain, how simple, hw reasoable are its teachings. The dead are dead, not alive. However, in view of God's plan that there shall be a resurrection of the dead "in due time" He speaks of the dead not as extinct, like the brute but as merely asleep. They are waiting for the morning—the glorious morning of Messiah's kingdom, when "the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in its beams," when Satan shall be bound for a thousand years and deceive the people no more. Instead of the reign of sin and death, the reign of righteousness and life everlasting shall begin. How beautifully the Scriptures answer the question of where the dead sleep. "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake" (Daniel xii, 2).

"Lazarus, Come Forth."

Jesus and His disciples turned their steps toward Bethany. Poor Martha and Mary meantime were sorely disappointed. Not for a moment did they suppose that their mighty Friend would allow this trouble to come upon them—that He would neglect to come or to use His power to save Lazarus from dying. So grief stricken and so heart broken were they that Martha alone came to meet the Master, and her first words were those of gentle reproach, reminding Him of their disappointment in Him. "Lord, if thou hadst been here —(if thou hadst come when we sent thee word)—our brother had not died."

What message of comfort did Jesus express? Did He say, Martha, Lazarus is far better off in heaven. He is with the angels! He is singing and very happy! Surely, you would not bring him back to earth again. Were these the words of Jesus? No. He merely said, "Thy brother shall rise again." He thus implied that her brother was not alive, but really dead. How could he rise again if he had not ceased to live? Martha's reply indicates that she understood what were the teachings of Jesus and the prophets. She said, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." But Jesus wished to draw her attention to the present and to have her ask Him even at this time to call Lazarus back from the sleep of death. So He said, "I am the resurrection and the life." You, Martha, recognize Me as the Messiah, the Son of God. You believe that eventually when the resurrection does take place God's resurrection power will be exercised through Me. And now I am here with you. Why do you not ask Me to exercise some of this power in advance? Where have you laid him?

Martha finally caught the thought, but replied, No, no, Lord, it is too late now. By this time he stinketh, for he has been dead four days. If you had come when I sent you word, or even had gotten here within a day or so, there would have been some hope; but now it has gone too far for that, for decomposition has set in. No miracle could possibly reorganize broken down tissues. But Jesus insisted that they should show Him the place. When He came to the tomb what did the Master do? Did He command Lazarus to lay aside his harp and crown in heaven, bid the angels good by and come back to earth life? No! Did He call for him to come up from Purgatory, the location of which nobody knows? No! What did He say? Addressing the tomb, He said, Lazarus, come forth! And what occurred? The dead one came forth. He was not alive at all. He was dead!

The Beloved Family.

We read again, "Now, Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus." Some have thought that they discerned Lazarus amongst later disciples of Christ—possibly Barnabas. But anyway, he was one whom Jesus loved, even though he was not one of the apostles who followed with the Lord. And Martha has come down to us as a synonym of bustling, energetic hospitality, "busied about many things." Yet surely she was loving and loyal to the Master. Jesus loved Martha and we may be sure, therefore, that He loves all similar characters. But He loved Mary also. And we do not forget that when she gave up some of her house work that she might sit at the feet of Jesus and learn of Him, the Master declared that she had "chosen the better part." This was the same Mary that had anointed the Master with the precious spikenard ointment five days before His burial. Martha and Mary both loved and were loved of the Lord, yet, evidently, Mary's love and the form it took was specially approved of the Master.

Finally, we come to John, the loving disciple of whom it was said that he was "that disciple whom Jesus loved." What a glorious testimony was John's! We remember that he and his brother loved the Lord so dearly that they desired that in His kingdom in the future they might be next to Him, one on His right hand and the other on his left hand. We remember that the Master answered that only by drinking of His cup of shame and ignominy, and by being baptized into His sacrificial death could they hope to sit in His throne at all. And we recall how loyally they agreed to these terms.

In proportion as we are desirous of having the Master's approval and smile, let us each seek to cultivate His character-likeness. The apostle tells us that such copies of God's dear Son are to be honored with a share with Him in His kingdom glory on the heavenly plane. To such will come the honor and privilege of uplifting and blessing mankind in general—to an earthly salvation in Paradise restored—by and by. As we note the special features of character which called forth the Master's love we will more and more be able to copy them in reaching our goal.

LAWSON BULLETIN

WHAT SECRETARY OF HOME INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION SAYS THIS WEEK.

BOOM FOR KATY RAILWAY SHOPS

Also Bouquets or Ladies' Musical Club, Charlie Guenther and Clem Honkomp, Sr.—The Garnishee Decision.

The following is from the Home Industry association bulletin, issued last evtning by C. C. Lawson, the secretary:

Don't forget to tell any one looking for employment that the M., K. & T. shops need one hundred men, and are not very particular as to their qualifications either

The recent supreme court decision with reference to garnishing railroad companies does not change in any way the law from what it has been since 1899, since it merely holds that the law then passed is constitutional—that one must first obtain a judgment for his debt against a railroad employe before a writ of garnishment shall issue.

It is claimed that only seven out of every one hundred men who engage in the mercantile business succeed. Sedalia seems to have the entire seven. One of them, Carl Guenther, the pioneer dry goods merchant, is building a $12,000 three story pressed brick flat on East Third street, thus doing away with the hole in the wall formerly occupied by Honkomp's cigar store, and when finished will be a credit to the city.

Did Honkomp go out of business? Oh, no, he moved into much larger quarters next door, where the famous Golden Rod and State Fair cigars are now turned out by the thousand daily, while the habitues occupy comfortable seats at eventide and through the smoke of these splendid cigars the rich man views his early struggles with more or less pleasure, the poor man sees his ships come in, and the lover sees his affinity in a thousand graceful poses. Try one.

Do Sedalians fully appreciate the efforts put forth by the women of Sedalia whenever anything is undertaken of a public nature? Have we stopped to think just what portion of credit is really due them in the recent campaign? Is there a business organization in the city that could have brought to Sedalia the Damrosch orchestra at a cost of $1,000, and made money out of the enterprise, as did the Ladies' Musical club? All hail to the Ladies' Musical club. All hail to the women of Sedalia and Pettis county.

"DOCKERY" HARRIS' DOG

Animal Has a Mania for Eating All Kinds of Rags.

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Charles L. Harris, a democratic candidate for the office of circuit clerk of this county, is mystified about his dog—a valuable bird dog—which has developed an insatiable hunger for rags, regardless of the kind or quality.

Several days ago Mr. Harris placed a shirt in the rear of his tailoring establishment to dry. He returned fifteen minutes later and the dog was devouring the tail.

The next day another garment was missing, and suspicion pointed to the canine. A third time Mr. Harris found the dog devouring a large-sized rag, but all efforts of himself, "Mitch" Finnegan and others to have the dog desist eating that kind of "food" have been of no avail.

LIGHTNING KILLS BOYS

Hay Fork Attracted Bolt to Stack Where They Were Hidden.

Rich Hill, Mo., June 28.—Alva and Lon Hanson, sons of A. Hanson, a farmer, were killed instantly by lightning yesterday.

They had been working in the hay field when a rain storm came up and sought shelter under a tarpaulin which covered a half finished stack of hay. The bolt struck a hay fork sticking in the stack.

The father discovered the hayrack on fire and upon rushing out found the half charred bodies of his sons in the burning hay.

PAID SHOPS VISIT

WENT THROUGH THE MISSOURI PACIFIC PLANT LAST AFTERNOON.

BUSY IN ALL THE DEPARTMENTS

There Are Two Hundred Cots, All Scrupulously Clean, Where the Machinists Sleep—Kitchen Was a Revelation.

To one who has never visited the general machine shops of a big railway system a trip through the one and one-half million dollar shops of the Missouri Pacific railway located in our midst would indeed be a revelation.

Ex-Mayor Babcock, Alderman McKenzie, Sheriff Henderson and A. D. Stanley were shown through this big plant yesterday afternoon. They were met at the entrance by one of Master Mechanic M. J. McGraw's clerks and taken through his office, where an army of clerks were as busy as could be. The sight of this busy lot of men indicated that a vast amount of business was being transacted.

From the business office to the immense storeroom below was the next move, and from there to the machine shops. This was a noisy place, but a busy one. This is the largest building on the grounds. All the machinery was in operation. The men appeared to know what they were doing, and are as intelligent as the men in any other department.

From there the visitors were escorted to the sleeping department, where possibly 200 cots are arranged in rows throughout the immense building now being used for the sleeping quarters.

The size of the building permits the cots to be so aranged that no crowding is necessary. The cots were sheeted and blanketed, and looked quite inviting.

The commissary is well arranged, well stocked and well kept. The kitchen is not surpassed by any in Sedalia. It is immaculately clean and orderly, and has ample capacity for its present use.

From there to the coach shops the visitors proceeded. Here the hammer and saw were vieing with each other as to which could accomplish the most work. A fine lot of men. Many of them young fellows and utilizing the saws and hammers.

From the car shops to "Dante's Inferno," the blacksmith shop, was the next step. It was awfully hot, but the workmen did not appear to mind it. Here, too, as good looking a lot of men may be found as in any other department. Some of these young fellows look as if they could make Jeffries and the nigger look like thirty cents, and in the first round at that; but none of them, we dare say, would condescend to fight the nigger.

From here to the various storerooms, where thousands of dollars' worth of material of all sorts is stored for use as occasion may demand.

Then to the power plant, where all of the power, steam, electricity and compressed air is developed. Mr. Mitchell is in charge. He explained every feature of this department and the operation of these immense engines. It is indeed an interesting sight.

Next a visit to the immense boiler rooms, where the men behind the shovels get busy. This immense battery of boilers is fed by self-feeders. Just so much coal can be used by this system. There is no waste; it is all used.

The visitors are especially grateful to Mr. McGraw, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Jones, superintendent of the blacksmith shop, for a most enjoyable and instructive 2½ hours' entertainment.

The business men of Sedalia owe it to themselves to visit this busy place. Mr. McGraw invites you, and now is a good time, as every department is in full operation.

REVERSED AND REMANDED

Mrs. Oliva P. Downs' $5,000 Damage Suit Is Sent Back.

The Kansas City Court of Appeals has reversed and remanded for trial the $5,000 damage suit of Mrs. Oliva P. Downs vs. L. P. Andrews, receiver of the Sedalia Water and Light company, and the Missouri and Kansas (Bell) company, which suit is of no little importance in this city.

The plaintiff's husband was John Y. Downs, a lineman for the Queen City (now Home) Telephone company, and on December 29, 1906, attempted to take up the slack of a Bell wire, which was resting on a Queen City wire two blocks distant, and which was charged with a high voltage by coming in contact with a surface wire of the water and light company. In so doing Mr. Downs was killed almost instantly.

His widow, through Attorneys C. C. Lawson and Sangree & Bohling, brought suit before Judge Louis Hoffman for $5,000 damages. Judge Hoffman sustained the demurrer to the evidence and the cause was appealed to the Kansas City Court of Appeals, where the decision was rendered yesterday.

C. E. Yeater and J. H. Bothwell represented the water company, and Judge George F. Longan and Gleed, Ward & Gleed represented the Bell company.

Paid a Fine of $5,000.

Washington, June 29.—Edward S. Holmes, jr., former associate statistician of the department of agriculture, indicted for misconduct in connection with the "cotton statistics leak," today pleaded guilty and was fined $5,000, which he paid.

For Sale, a Tract of Land.

At a bargain, in Drew county, Ark.; about 7 miles from Monticello, the county seat, and about 5 miles from a station on the railway. There is about 1,000 acres in this tract. There is a 2-story frame house of 9 rooms. About 100 acres is farmed, the balance is as fine a body of oak timber as there is in the county. The trees are all tall and healthy. The land all lays well to farm, when the timber is removed. No swamp, no hills. Much of this is creek bottom land and very rich soil (no overflow), and would make fine alfalfa or rice land. There are alfalfa fields near this, on same kind of land. Price $10 per acre. Address

CHARLTON CASE JULY 8

The Confessed Wife Murderer Was Thin and Pale Today.

New York, June 28.—Porter Charlton, the confessed wife murderer, pale and thin, was brought from jail to the court house today for a preliminary trial. He shielded his face from the curious crowd.

At the request of the defense adjournment to July 8th was granted. Charlton kept his eyes closed all the while the lawyers were talking. In the meantime the case waits on the result of an exchange between the state department at Washington and the Italian government.

FOR NEGRO GIRLS

SITE FOR STATE SCHOOL HAS NOT BEEN LOCATED, THE GOVERNOR SAYS.

SEDALIA NOT CONSIDERED NOW

The Managers of Proposed Industrial Home for Incorrigible Colored Girls Favor Keytesville for Location.

The board of managers of the State Industrial Home for Negro Girls met at Jefferson City Monday to take up the question of a site for that institution, which as yet has not been decided upon, despite the fact that certain Sedalians have expressed confidence in its being located on the Edward Hurley tract of ground in Northeast Sedalia.

After the meeting he announced that the board has been requested by residents of Keytesville to locate the institution there. Governor Hadley thinks the board may decide to locate the school at Keytesville. However, Ironton and Mecca, the latter a negro community in Clinton county, are under consideration.

This is an industrial school for incorrigible negro girls similar to that for white girls at Chillicothe. The last legislature appropriated $20,000 for a site and the erection of a suitable building. This sum may be inadequate. The members of the board are:

Dr. O. M. Ricket, St. Joseph; Mrs. Victoria Clay Haley. St. Louis; C. G. Williams, Boonville, and Dr T. C. Untank and Mrs. Frances J. Jackson, of Kansas City.

A DEATH MESSAGE TODAY

"Mrs. Jean Baxter, care chief of police, Sedalia, Mo.: B. F. Lawson found dead here yesterday. Had evidently been dead for about three weeks. Body buried here today in soldiers' ground."

Mr. Lawson was the father of Mrs. John T. Baxter, wife of the secretary of the S. H. Beller Grocer company. Nothing is known of the death other than what the foregoing telegram states.

The deceased was about 65 years of age, retired and a G. A. R. veteran. Three children survive him, namely: Mrs. Baxter, of Sedalia; Mrs. D. V. Buckley, of Joplin, Mo., and R. M. Lawson, of Springfield, Mo.

THIRTY DAYS' HARD LABOR

Sylvester Thompson, a 15-year-old negro boy, was arrested early Friday night by "Billy" Drake, a substitute policeman, charged with stealing almost $25 worth of goods from F. L. Cutler, a hardware salesman, residing at 405 West Seventh street.

Thompson was arraigned before James C. Connor, judge of police court, Saturday and was sentenced to serve thirty days at hard labor on the county roads. A portion of the stolen goods Thompson had disposed of at a second-hand store, some of which were recoverod.

The stolen articles were: Lawn mower, valued at $6.50; paint, valued at $10; clothes wringer, $4.50; rake, 75 cents; spading fork, 90 cents; hoe, 50 cents; scythe, 25 cents.

GIRL WAS RESCUED

TAKEN FROM ROOMING HOUSE IN THE "TENDERLOIN" AT PITSBURG, PA.

HAD BEEN POSING FOR PICTURES

Was Taken to the House By John James, 60-Year-Old Man Who Had Been Divorced—Represented Himself As Artist.

Pittsburg, Penn., June 28.—"I was only one of three or four girls that he had posing living pictures for him, but he liked me best, and kept me, and sent the others away. He told us he would turn us over to the police for going to a place like that if we didn't obey him."

This was part of the story of a ten-days' orgy in a rooming house in the Tenderloin, related to Assistant District Attorney Martin by Annie Mussart, a strikingly beautiful 14-year-old girl, who was arrested by detectives in company with 60-year-old John James, a divorcee.

James, it is claimed, enticed the girls into the place, and subjected them to unmentionable abuses.

The Mussart girl, when rescued, was almost a wreck. She was sent to a rescue home. James is being held on six charges. The woman who conducted the rooming house also is under arrest.

Neighbors rescued two others of the girls, both of tender years, several days ago, and then notified the police.

In a suite of rooms, which James had fitted up elaborately, were found an improvised stage, screens for posing arranged with considerable artistic taste, and a collection of filmy dancing robes and clinging Greek costumes.

The proprietress of the house said James represented himself as an artist.

SEDALIA MAN CONVICTED

J. J. Weber Found Guilty of Giving Poor Notes for Lot's Title.

Kansas City, Mo., June 28.—J. J. Weber, of Sedalia, Mo., yesterday was found guilty of obtaining property under false pretenses by a jury in the second division of the district court of Wyandotte county.

Evidence introduced at the trial showed that Weber got the title of a house in lot in Kansas City, Kas., from Charles Hoyt, an optician, by giving him two notes of $2,000 each, which were secured by a second mortgage on a farm near Bosworth, Mo.

The testimony showed that the notes were made out by a man who had the farm in his own name, but had it mortgaged for $12,000, which was $5,000 more than its estimated value.

The crime of which Weber was convicted is punishable by a penitentiary term.

Officer McCabe responded, but when he reached the place the dog had become exhausted and was in the last stages. A hammer was used to end its misery.

CUT OWN TOE OFF

THE JOB WAS DONE BY AN OIL OPERATOR AT PITTSBURG, PA.

HAD NO USE FOR MODERN SURGERY

Then Bandaged the Toe, Put on Shoe and Walked Into the Bar of His Hotel, Where He Had Stiff Stimulant.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 28.—"Cy" Andrews, a wealthy oil operator, is the talk of Pittsburg through a daring exhibition of nerve when he amputated his own toe with a pocket knife because he had no use for doctors.

A few weeks ago Mr. Andrews became troubled with an ailment on his foot and the doctors advised him that it might be necessary to cut off the toe at the joint.

"You won't start that with me," Andrews is reported to have said. "I had a friend and they cut off a toe and then a part of his leg, and twice after they cut off more parts of his leg until they reached the knee."

Mr. Andrews went to his room and neatly cut off the toe with his sharp pocket knife. He bandaged the cut put on his shoe and walked into the bar of his hotel for a stimulant. The barkeeper remarked that he looked somewhat pale. "Oh, I just cut off my toe," said Andrews. "Here it is," and with the words he drew the toe, done up in paper, from his pocket.

The operation was entirely successful, and, minus a toe, Mr. Andrews is attending to his large oil interests.

TWO SEDALIA OPERATORS

They Are Now Employed at Brooklyn, New York.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Leo Lennartz and Will Martin, who graduated as operators under Frank E. Gibbons, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co.'s office in this city, are now in the employ of the company at Brooklyn, N. Y., and are getting along splendidly. They are first-class operators, and positions are always open to them at good salaries.

The boys left here together a couple of years ago. They worked for a time in Kansas City, then went to Dallas, Texas, where they remained some months. The past winter they were employed in New Orleans, and went from there to Memphis, Tenn., where they worked some time. Their next engagement was in Chicago, from where they went to New York some weeks ago.

Manager Gibbons, of the local office, says never before were good operators in such demand, and he is not surprised that Leo and Will have had no difficulty in securing employment.

MORE STRIKE BREAKERS

The Missouri Pacific Brought In 25 This Afternoon.

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Missouri Pacific train No. 1 this afternoon brought in twenty-five additional strike breakers to take the places of the striking machinists at the new Missouri Pacific shops.

The men occupied a special car on the train, which was stopped in the eastern suburbs of town and the men taken direct to the shop grounds.

This last consignment makes more than 200 that have been brought here since the strike began on May 2, but a number of them remained only a short time and then sought employment elsewhere.

SALE OF RURALIST

SEDALIA'S WEEKLY AGRICULTURAL PAPER BOUGHT BY MR. ARTHUR CAPPER.

WELL KNOWN KANSAS PUBLISHER

Col. M. V. Carroll Will Continue as Editor—Business Manager W. E. Hurlbut Remains With the Sedalia Printing Co.

(From Tuesday's Daily)

The Ruralist has been sold to Arthur Capper, of Topeka, Kas. The consideration is private, but the price paid was substantial and highly satisfactory to the sellers of the paper. Mr. Capper entered into a contract to have the Sedalia Printing Co. continue the printing of the paper for three years.

The Democrat-Sentinel is glad to know that W. E. Hurlbut, the business manager, who owned 80 per cent of the stock, and Col. M. V. Carroll, the editor, will continue to reside in Sedalia. They are genial, polished gentlemen, and a credit to their profession.

The Ruralist will this week make the following announcement regarding the change of ownership:

The Ruralist, its subscription lists, advertising contracts and good will, have been sold to Mr. Arthur Capper, of Topeka, Kas., and will be transferred to him on July 1. Its publication will be continued at Sedalia, and M. V. Carroll will remain with the new management in his present position of editor. W. E. Hurlbut will retire to devote his whole time to the Sedalia Printing Co. and private business.

The Ruralist was established October 16, 1902, since which date it has never missed an issue. During all this time it has labored earnestly and persistently for the welfare and betterment of agriculture and the live stock interests.

We appreciate and will long cherish the many warm friendships won in this work, and to those who favored us with their business patronage and support we extend our sincere thanks and bespeak for the new management a continuance of the same generous treatment.

To many thousand of Missourians Mr. Capper needs no introduction. He is a well known and successful publisher, being owner of the numerous Capper publications at Topeka that have a combined circulation of over 1,000,000 copies. Besides being possessed of abundant means, he has the ability and facilities to make The Ruralist the peer of the best and strongest agricultural papers in America, and we hope that Missouri's farmers and stockmen will manifest substantial appreciation of his efforts in their behalf.

ELDER AND WIDOW

SAY THE MEETINGS THEY HELD WERE OF PURELY PLATONIC NATURE.

HE "FIRED" FROM THE CHURCH

No Action, However, Taken In Regard to the Woman—Charges Were Brought By Prominent Church Members.

Butler, Pa., June 28.—Dr. Alfred Holman, an elder and president of the sessions of the First Presbyterian church here, has been expelled from the church after the charges against the aged physician had been investigated by the church sessions presided over by Rev. Hugh Shaw, rector of the parish.

The charges were brought by seven prominent church members, and consisted of a recital of the alleged clandestine meetings between Dr. Holman and Mrs. Ada Pollock, a pretty young widow, who has been teaching school here.

The plaintiffs gave dates and places and the sessions unanimously condemned Dr. Holman. No action was taken on the woman.

Both deny their guilt, and Mrs. Holman backs up her husband's denial by declaring she knew all about the meetings, and that they simply were "platonically friendly."

SHAME OF NEVADA

THE REV. M. P. BOYNTON, OF CHICAGO, WANTS FIGHT STOPPED NOW.

EVEN THOUGH THE LAW PERMITS IT

Thinks There Should Be Some Way by Which the Nation Could Recall the Charter of the Sage Brush State.

Chicago, June 28.—Nevada was bitterly denounced Sunday evening by the Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton in the Lexington Avenue Baptist church for permitting the staging of the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno on Independence day. His subject was "Nevada's Shame."

"It is Nevada's shame that she lacks men of brain and brawn who could protect her against herself and make her deserts to blossom as the rose," said Mr. Boynton. "Her masters have taken a course that promises to keep Nevada an uninhabited desert for many years.

"There should be some way by which our nation could recall the charter of a state that has become a desert and a moral menace. Nevada has no right to remain a part of our nation with the full powers of a state. Nevada should become a territory and be governed from Washington in such fashion as to protect the rest of the republic against the international shame that is now ours because of the monstrous evil of the prize ring.

"One such prize fight sets back our citizenship many generations.

"Some power of the national government should find the means of enjoining the newspapers, the railroads, the postoffice, the express companies from advertising or promoting the interests of prize fighting in any way whatsoever. It would seem that the postal authorities had this right now and could throw out all mail matter that refers to the prize fight, just as they punish all persons who use the mails for lotteries or other improper schemes."

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE FARMER

SELL OFF THE OLD HENS

At this time of the year hens hatched a year ago last spring may be roasted nicely if they are in good condition, and let me say right here it is bad policy to market chickens that are poor in flesh.

A thin hen can be well fattened in three weeks.

She can be made to advance in weight from 4 1-2 lbs. to 6 lbs. and this gain of one third in flesh is surpassed by the advance in price per pound at the hands of a discriminating purchaser.

There is another kind of fowl that the shrewd farmer wishes to get rid of before winter and this is the time of year to do it.

I refer to the hen two or three years old.

The hen that you kept over the last season against your better judgment for you knew that as a pullet and as a yearling she did better work at the egg basket than she ever can do again.

She accumulated fat during last winter and will do all right to stew lots of good gravy about her; or she will if stewed a while first, make nice chicken pie.

If steamed a long time she will even make a prime roast. Sell her now before the price goes down.

In June last year we disposed of our surplus old hens at 15 cents per lb., that is more per pound than they will bring next fall.

From July first to November first, old hens scarcely more than pay for their food by the few eggs they produce and as the price of live poultry drops so fast in the meantime it is best to sell early.

You need the room in the summer quarters for younger and more profitable hens.

You need more room too for the growing youngsters, for by October first, the early pullets should come in to the regular laying houses and they must not be crowded if they are to do their best work. So weed out the fat old hens—T. E. F.

THE PASTURE AND THE MEADOW

A CAREFUL STUDY OF THE SUBJECT WILL DISCLOSE THE FACT THAT A VARIETY OF GRASSES MAKES BETTER PASTURE THAN ONLY ONE KIND

By S. M. Miller.

There is no one matter connected with good farm management that is more deserving of more careful attention than the growing of tame grasses, and the maintaining of the productive capacity of our permanent pasture land. The successful grass grower needs to have a practical understanding of all the species of tame grasses that we grow and cultivate on our farms as well as a knowledge of their requirements and conditions that are essential to their growth. Much of the success and many times all of the profits of our farms are directly dependent upon the amount and quality of hay and forage produced.

Very few farmers bestow much thought, care or attention to their grass land and comparatively few can name the different varieties of grass growing on their own farms. They sow timothy and clover (which is not a grass) in their rotations because the custom of other farmers in their section is to do the same thing. They fail to devote their time or attention to the study of the less common varieties that are in many cases better adapted to their particular kind of soil. After committing a few clover and timothy seeds to their poorly fitted fields they congratulate themselves that they have done all that mortal man can do and either blame the Government at Washington or their weather for their mistakes and failures.

It sometimes seems as if one half of the farmers were doing everything possible to fight nature and when we make a study of the various grasses and their peculiar needs we wonder that we have been succeeding as well as we have in growing good crops of hay. A careful study of the English system of maintaining a permanent meadow and pasture would essentially aid us in the management of our grass lands. There we may find from ten to twenty kinds of grass growing on one sod and all thriving and producing hay and forage.

We go on our meadows when the proper times come, cut the grass, cure it into hay and haul it to the stack or barns and think no more about the whole matter until the next year comes and then we go out and go through the same motions only get a smaller crop and keep this up until the yield is so small that we feel it is necessary to plow up the field and reseed it to clover and timothy again. We don't go to the trouble of top dressing or fertilizing the meadow or tile drain to prevent the water from drowning it out during the wet season nor do we plan to leave a stubble to protect it from the hot summer sun.

Another cause of the inferiority of our meadow lands is the fact that they are supporting numberless useless weeds.

If we could rid our meadows of this pest it would add millions of dollars to the pockets of our farmers. How can it be done? By thorough tillage? By the use of more grass seed? Most emphatically No. That would be in direct opposition to the laws of nature.

We may prepare the soil in the best possible manner and sow on clover and Timothy so thick that the grass will come up as thick as the hair on a dog and in some places we will yet find that the young plants will die out and their places be filled with noxious weeds.

These interspaces may be filled ever so often with fresh seed and the result will be similar which is conclusive evidence that every soil has a capacity for supporting a certain number of one kind of plants and it will produce no more than that number of that variety no matter how well it is tilled or how many are germinated on that particular soil.

When we fill these interspaces between the plants with another specie of grass a certain lot of its plants will grow and the rest will die soon after they have germinated.

The ones that grow will not interfere with the other varieties and the yield will be increased.

It has been found that land will not produce its maximum yield of grass unless it is occupied by a number of kinds of grasses.

Practical experience has shown us that any soil will be more certain to yield larger and better crops of forage and hay when it is seeded with mixed grasses than when sown to clover and Timothy alone.

Our flocks and herds will thrive better when fed on mixed grasses, (no matter whether in a green condition or cured for hay) than they will when fed on any one or two varieties sowed alone, no matter how nutritious these grasses may be.

We will find it in every way as important to balance our forage rations as it is the grain rations if we obtain the best results from a minimum amount of feed.

All animals that depend upon grass will thrive better when fed on a mixture for the elements are furnished in greater abundance and in a manner better adapted to their needs.

If you have ever noticed a horse or a cow at liberty you will have observed the fact that they are constantly going from one kind of grass to another while they are eating.

Animals will often walk from one end of a large pasture to another to get a nibble of some variety of grass that is different from that in the other end of the pasture.

Pastures that contain the greatest number of varieties of grass are invariably the ones that will support the most stock.

It is one of the greatest evils of our system of farming to plow up a good pasture for it requires a number of years to get a good turf established.

In selecting grass seed for a permanent pasture select kinds that will bloom in succession from early summer until late in the fall so that when one kind is not growing there will be another to occupy the soil and prevent weeds from growing in where the soil is not occupied.

In selecting grasses for the meadow select varieties that flower about the same time so that they may be cured for hay at one cutting.

Select those that furnish the most leaves and thus diminish the amount of woody indigestible matter in the hay.

It is folly to try to skim off a second crop from the meadows. If the growth is too rank in the fall pasture it off with young stock but do not pasture it close enough to injure its chances of living through the winter.

Nature provides for winter by promoting a rapid fall growth. The old ideas of getting something for nothing have been exploded for a long time and if we cut three tons of hay from our meadows we must feed them accordingly and keep the bare spots covered with grass instead of weeds.

If we supply better forage rations for our livestock they will come through the winter in better condition and will requre less grain to keep them in a thrifty condition.

We, as a rule, are feeding too much grain to our animals and unless we devote more attention to providing nutritious forage rations we must expect less hardy and vigorous animals.

HELPING THE HAY CROP

On many farms where the number of animals raised on the farm and kept through the winter is dependent upon the amount of hay harvested, the farmer is unable to winter all of his stock when the hay crop is a failure unless he grows catch crops to supplement his hay crop.

Oats and peas make a very good catch crop and will produce a large amount of palatable and nourishing hay.

Corn fodder makes an excellent catch crop and can be sown at almost any time before the first week of July and afford abundance of rough feed, although corn that is allowed to reach a more mature condition will afford the most nourishment.

Millet is another excellent catch crop and will thrive under a wide variety of conditions, but like most other crops will produce better crops when it is raised on land that contains an abundance of plant food.

Barley and peas are very valuable for fall feeding and may be cut late and cured for hay the same as oats and peas. This mixed crop may be used for soiling purposes until late in November. Rape is a member of the turnip family and makes an excellent late forage crop for sheep and hogs and many farmers pasture it with young cattle but it is not advised for feeding dairy cattle, owing to the danger of its giving the milk a bad odor, similar to that imparted by the turnip when fed in large quantities.

Soy beans are recommended highly as an economical source of protein and may be grown in most sections of the country where live stock is fed. Many fail with this crop because they do not wait for the ground to become warm before they sow the crop. Soy beans may be drilled planted in hills or in rows.

On farms where there is a silo they will do well when sowed in the corn field and cut into the silo with the corn crop. It increases the food value of the ensilage and has no bad results—M. F. S.

THE CITY BRED FARMER

The government land offices and real estate dealers in the West generally report that more farm lands are being sold to the city men at this time than ever before. The development of irrigation in the far west seems to have a peculiar attraction for city men and the vast areas of cheap lands in the southwest which are being cut up into small tracts and sold on the installment plan are finding thousands of buyers.

But, there are many dangers confronting the non-resident land owner.

Farming is a business which requires as much knowledge and application as any other business. Farming cannot be successfully carried on at long range and too often is a failure at short range with the owner on the job every day.

The city man who buys irrigated land at from $100 to $150 per acre and who has had no previous knowledge of farming must not expect to become a successful farmer or fruit grower and make enough money out of his farm to support his family at the start. It requires not only good knowledge of farming but capital as well to make a profit on high-priced land and the inexperienced city man who has been led to believe that he can wrest a living from the soil at the start is almost sure to be doomed to disappointment.

If city men are determined to engage in farming let them buy small tracts close to a good market, well watered, with rich soil and in a kindly climate and start on a small scale. They will be unwise to make the venture without enough money to support their families for at least the first year, and even with that they will find other lean years stretching out between their experiments and success.

We have no desire to discourage city dwellers who want to change a life of ill-paid toil in a dirty smoky city for the freedom and cleanliness of the country, but we cannot help urging caution.

For the man and his wife thoroughly in love with farm work, who are not deceived by the glamour of the country, and who have ambition and determination to study modern methods of farming and can start with sufficient capital, there are many opportunities awaiting them in every state of the Union today.

THE PROBLEM OF GOOD ROADS

By W. L. Spoon.

The climate is a factor of importance for the road builder to consider. In the eastern sections, where the soil is plastic, the rains are most abundant, while in the western sand hills the climate is semi-arid and quite strong south winds prevail. These conditions introduce an important matter for consideration. Sand roads are best when wet, and clay roads when dry, but climatic conditions operate adversely and must be taken into consideration seriously. The rains make the eastern roads muddy, while dry weather makes of the western roads deep shifting sand. The suggestion offered by this natural condition is to add sand to the eastern clays and clay to the western sands in order to bring about, between the soil and the climate, the balance necessary for the betterment of the roads. Additional encouragement is afforded by the natural distribution of the material, which in most cases is abundantly provided for all needs.

Which Kind of Road Runs By Your Farm?

In the eastern portion, where rains are abundant, the question of drainage is very important, and, moreover, a greater percentage of sand (65 to 85 per cent) must be used, while in the West, in the semi-arid sandhill section, the reverse proportion is not only permissible but often necessary. In the East the road must meet, as its supreme test, continued wet weather, while in the West continued drought furnishes a maximum strain on the binding power of the clay. In the East the road is likely to fail by reason of mud holes and washes; in the West it must resist pulverizing and blowing away as dust. Between these two extremes lie all the possible methods of sand-clay road construction. Upon the judgment of the supervisor, therefore, depends the character of the work to be done. He should know how to select the best available clay for the conditions to be met, and likewise how to select the sand and incorporate it with the clay so as to obtain the best possible results.

All forms of hard roads should have a good crown, varying from side to center. The slope of the crown should be greatest at the sides and flattened as it approaches the center. Only a sand road requires no crown at all. Where nothing but deep sand prevails, the surface should be concave for the purpose of conserving, as far as possible, the moisture. Sand alone is improved by water.

The farm motor is rapidly taking the place of horses on many of the large western farms, where they are used for nearly every kind of heavy farm work, requiring power.

June pastures ought to be rank now so be careful about turning on them, sheep that have been on short dry pastures or dry feed. Bloat may follow.

MAKING THE FARM-HOME BEAUTIFUL

TO INSURE BEST RESULTS, SHRUBS—PROPERLY SELECTED AND CAREFULLY TENDED, SHOULD BE PLANTED AROUND THE HOUSE

By Eva Ryman-Gaillard.

Shrubs furnish one of the most effective aids in making the Farm-Home-Beautiful, but to get the best effects from them they must have good care, which includes intelligent pruning, after they are planted.

Pruning, whether it be pinching out the bud or sawing off a limb is simply cutting away one part of a plant for the betterment of what is left, yet the majority of amateur growers seem to think that pruning and destruction are synonymous terms, instead of being the surest way of improving the bush and forcing it to produce finer foliage and flowers, and more of them.

Each class of shrubs has its own requirements but the grower who learns a very few general facts will make no mistake as to what these requirements are.

For instance the lilacs that bloom in May produce the flowers at the tips of branches that grew the year before—in fact the buds are stored away in the branches during the fall months.

As this fact is equally true of all early-flowering shrubs anyone giving the matter consideration will know, without being told, that cutting the branches back in the spring is cutting off the buds.

The same bit of knowledge makes equally evident the fact that shrubs of this class should be pruned immediately after blooming, to force them to send out new branches in time for the wood to ripen and the buds develop before the end of the growing season—ready for opening the following spring.

On the other hand, hardy hydrangeas and most other fall-blooming shrubs produce their flowers on wood of that year's growth and should be pruned very early in spring to force new lateral branches to develop, and give plenty of "tips" to produce blossoms.

Watch a shrub as it grows and blooms until its habits are known—whether it blooms on wood formed the year before or whether wood and blooms are produced the same year, and no other knowledge is needed in order to know the right season for doing needed pruning.

When the question of how often and how much a shrub should be cut back comes up widely differing answers are given: Some saying "A little every year," and others advocating severe pruning at longer intervals but, in the experience of the writer the condition of each individual shrub has seemed to indicate, plainly, when any cutting is needed and how much.

Sometimes there are heavy, woody branches that need cutting out entirely and mid-summer is a good time for this work because the wounds heal more quickly, with less loss of sap, when the bush is in full foliage and crowding or criss-cross branches are more easily detected.

If a shrub is not too densely wooded and is in good form with plenty of blooming points there is no need of pruning every year, but a watchful eye should be kept on them and any branches that take from the beauty of the bush removed as soon as found.

Another thing to be remembered is that pruning does not always imply the use of saw or knife, for very often it is most wisely done when nothing more than the thumb and finger nails are needed—pinching out the tiny branch, or bud that would develop into a branch out of place and take vitality from the plant, only to be cut away when grown.

Sometimes old shrubs that have been neglected until the main stalks have become miniature trees come into ones possession and the wise thing to do, in such cases, is to cut them entirely off to within a few inches of the soil.

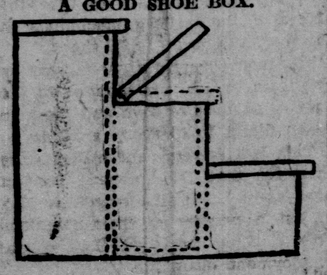

With such shrubs the pruning may well be carried below the surface by taking the roots up; cutting them apart; trimming off any that are dead, and replanting. This means a sacrifice of bloom for a year, or perhaps two, but after that the flowers will be vastly finer than the old shrub could be forced to produce.

REAL NATURE STUDIES.

Nature study has come to have an important place in the curriculum of our public schools and colleges, and the most successful teachers fully admit that greater progress is made by taking classes into the fields and demonstrating by actual sight what great things are being wrought in nature's great work shop, than by any research in books, though the latter may act as aids and incentives to study.

Now does the busy mite make trouble for the poultry. Spray kerosene, burn sulphur, and whitewash.

A GOOD SHOE BOX.

THE CRIMSON RAMBLER.

Cutting is the best means of propagation for the Crimson Rambler. Under glass, short cuttings two or three inches long can be made in November and December, from wood of the current year's growth. They should be planted in sand, in flats or pans and kept in a cool place.

They root in February or March and can be either potted in thumb pots or kept on in flats until May or June, when they should be planted out in rich beds.

CARE OF COWS IN FLY TIME

A few calves will occupy but little stable room and will require but little additional food and attention.

We can make no greater mistake than to compel them to suffer day after day fighting flies in the blistering sun.

Some dairymen keep their cows inside during the worst part of the fly season allowing them to run out nights.

After a run out in the pasture they are put in the stable in the morning and it is darkened so that the flies will remain out side.

A little green forage fed while they are kept inside during the day and the loss in milk and flesh is reduced to a minimum.

Few dairymen can afford to withstand the losses that are due to the fly pest.

It is claimed by good authorities that in some cases an animal loses more than a pint of blood each day and such losses and suffering mean that they can return no profit at the pail when they are handled in this manner.

In nearly every dairy section flies cut off from thirty to forty per cent in the receipts of the creameries.

No dairy section can afford to stand such severe losses.

Until we find some effective method of lasting qualities we must avoid losses from this source by keeping the animals where the plague will be reduced to a minimum.

The scientific work of handling the fly problem should be encouraged and in due time we are in a position to handle the question.

If we can plan to keep all but one side of the stable darkened the flies will not bother the calves or cows as bad as when there is no light at all for they will fly toward the light and get lost and not be able to find the stock after flying toward the light.

When we stop and consider the intimate relationship between the comfort of the cows and calves and their milk and growth we will not hesitate to do all in our power to improve their condition during fly time.

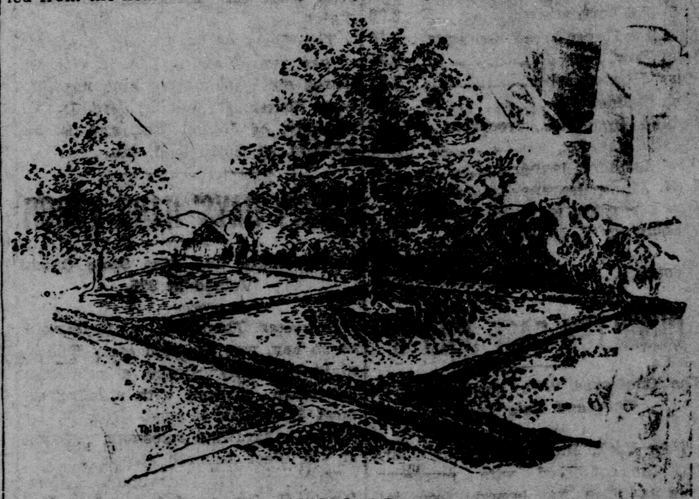

Loads of clover hauled to the stable every three days will keep them in good feeding condition and the manure thus gained will more than pay for the labor of cutting and hauling and the cows will give as even flow instead of drying up.

APPLYING WATER TO ORCHARDS

By Samuel Fortier.

The agricultural wealth of that vast region lying west of the Missouri River was first made known by men who were poor in wordly goods but rich in those physical and mental endowments which go to make up the best type of citizenship. Their poverty, unfortunately compelled them to make use of the cheapest methods in rendering the arid lands productive. Water was led from the nearest stream in a plow furrow and the irrigator in wet feet tried to spread it over the field by use of a shovel. The small and cheap equipment, consisting of a walking plow and shovel, has given place to a large number of implements, and the simple, laborious manner of applying water has been broadened out into more than a half dozen standard methods, yet in studying the latest improvements it is evident that many of them are mere makeshifts and that much remains to be done before the water of western streams is efficiently and economically applied to arid lands.

One of the popular forms of irrigating orchard trees in the arid regions is called the basin method, which is in all essential features very much like the check method of irrigating a field of alfalfa. Orchards are prepared for irrigation by the basin method by forming ridges of the loose earth midway between the rows of trees in both directions. These ridges are made with ordinary walking plows by throwing up two furrows or else by a ridger. When the top soil is light and free from weeds only the ridger is required, but in more compact soils and on soils covered with weeds the surface should first be disked. This method is well adapted to the warmer portions of California, Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico, where the winter irrigation of orchards is becoming a fixed practice. Water is there abundant and large quantities can be applied when the land is thus flooded into small compartments.

(From Sunday's Daily)

J. C. McLaughlin, Sr., served an elegant golf dinner in seven strokes at his home, 501 West Seventh street, at 7 o'clock Friday evening, covers being laid for ten guests.

Those present were: Dr. J. S. Rogers, R. E. Codding, William Courtney, T. J. Sturges, George K. Mackey, E. V. Shultz, Ed J. Evans, Prof. S. E. Gragg, J. C. McLaughlin, Jr., and the host.

The affair was given merely in honor of the gentlemen, who are intimate golf player friends of Mr. McLaughlin.

A feature of the function was the unique style of the menu card, on the outer cover of which was, "A Dinner in Seven Strokes."

The card was so arranged as to be understood by no other than a golf player, and after the service of the menu the guests indulged in social converse, departing at a late hour, after having spent a delightful evening.

MRS. HEROLD INJURED

Thrown By a Horse Friday and Painfully Hurt.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Mrs. W. W. Herold, wife of the real estate dealer, was painfully injured Friday in consequence of which she will be confined to her bed for some time.

Mrs. Herold was visiting at the home of Miss Minnie Shafer, on South Vermont avenue, when the check-rein of her horse caught under a shaft.

She started to remove it when the animal began backing up. Fearing the vehicle would be overturned she started to jump out, when the horse plunged against her, throwing her to the ground and severely spraining her right ankle.

Associated Press.

New York, June 27.—When James J. Jeffries was born, thirty-five years ago April 15 last, a first-class fighting man was created. He was endowed with everything that goes to make up a fighter, right from the start. He did not need to train and school himself to any great extent. He had both the brain and the brawn, and all he lacked was the ambition to win fame as a fighter.

When the ambition did come to him it required but two years for him to vanquish every fighter worthy of consideration, and make the championship title one of his personal assets. Once he secured it, the only way he could find of ridding himself of the burdens it imposed was to give it away. That is what Jeff did with it. He looked over the field of worthy heavy-weights with a view to adopting one of them as his heir. Eight years after his first fight he decided that Marvin Hart was the heir-apparent, and abdicated in Hart's favor.

One of the striking things about Jeffries is the fact that it took a great deal of argument to convince him that he was a fighting man at all. Despite nature's generosity to him in the matter of size and strength, he had a strong suspicion all the time that he was intended to be a farmer.

Though his early life he displayed great fondness for getting close to nature with a fishing rod or a gun, and spent quite a bit of time among the mountains. He developed a decided fondness for country life, and when he resigned his high state as champion, having annexed enough money through purses, moving pictures and stage appearances to do what he pleased, he hastened to a farm in Southern California with the intention of ending his days as a sort of country squire. Had John Arthur Johnson and the color question not interfered with his plans he would, in all probability, have carried out that determination.

Jeffries was born in Carroll, Ohio, in 1875, but his parents came to California so soon after his arrival that he is looked upon almost as a native of that state. Little is recorded of his doings prior to 1897 beyond the fact that he was a mighty hunter, a good boilermaker, and a rough and tumble fighter with whom few cared to mix. He never was an amateur fighter. The first time he entered the ring he did so on the spur of the moment, accepting the challenge of a colored fighter named "Hank" Griffin because of the money he would get by defeating the challenger. The fight occurred in Los Angeles, Cal., in 1893, and Jeff accomplished the defeat of the colored man in fourteen rounds, winding up with an artistic knock-out.

While this victory did not seem to arouse Jeff to any ambition as a fighter, it attracted the attention of fighters to him as a valuable training partner. He seconded a middleweight named Billy Gallagher in San Francisco two years later, and Gallagher got him a match in 1896 with Dan Long, of Denver. There was a $1,00 purse up, and Long went to sleep in the second round when Jeff's left encountered his nose.

It was shortly after this that Jim Corbett began to prepare for his fight with Bob Fitzsimmons, which gave the latter the championship. Harry Corbett, Jim's brother, who was on the lookout for sparring partners, sent Jeff up to Carson City, Nevada, to join Jim's training staff. Corbett hammered the big fellow unmercifully, but Jeff was absorbing knowledge of the fighting game through every pore. These were his first real boxing lessons, and he took them from a master of the craft. Within three weeks after Corbett's defeat, Jeff was in the ring again on his own hook, doing away with the aspirations of two promising heavyweights in quick succession in 1897.

So much had Jeff benefited by Corbett's training that he was marked as a coming fighter at once, and a match was arranged for him with Gus Ruhlin, of Akron, Ohio, which was fought in San Francisco in 1897. The fight went twenty rounds to a draw.

In the same year Jeffries fought Joe Choynski a twenty-round draw. He recalls this fight particularly, he says, because Choynski landed on his jaw the hardest blow he ever received. It was a right-hander, and had so much good will behind it that Jeffries never forgot it. That punch was one of the things that made Jeffries call Choynski to his aid when he decided to return to the ring to fight Johnson.

During the next year Jeffries began to find out how strong he really was. He knocked out Joe Goddard, of Australia, a hardy fighter with many victories to his credit, followed that up by knocking out Old Peter Jackson in three rounds, and making Mexican Pete Everett quit in less than three. A twenty-round draw with Tom Sharkey came in the same year, and then Jeffries went to New York, where he was matched to fight two men in one evening. The first of these was Bob Armstrong (colored), and Jeff damaged his hand against the big black to such an extent that he could not meet Steve O'Donnell, the other man, much to the delight of O'Donnell's friends.

During this time Bob Fitzsimmons was retaining the championship against all comers. A match was made between Jeff and Bob at Coney Island, 1899. It was looked upon as a joke, as the man who had gathered Jim Corbett's scalp in decisive style was thought to be able to play with the big green hand, Jeffries. Fitzsimmons did play with him—for nine rounds. If there was any part of Jeff's head he did not hit at will, nobody at the ringside could locate the place. But in the tenth Fitz was tired, and in the eleventh, after going down twice, he was unable to get up a third time, and Jim Jeffries was champion of the world.

Five months later Jeffries met Tom Sharkey again in a twenty-five round fight at Coney Island. Jeff got a decision over the sailor, but he declares that Sharkey is the gamest man who ever entered the ring.

Corbett, by this time, was eager to get a match with his former sparring partner. The fight was arranged, and for twenty rounds Jeffries took a terrific amount of punishment. He utterly failed to reach Corbett with his gloves, although Corbett battered him around so freely that the big fellow looked foolish. Jeff's seconds told him that he was ex-champion beyond doubt unless he did something, and Jeff went out to do in the next round. He tore after Corbett, minding the storm of blows that met him no more than he would mind so many raindrops. His left reached Corbett's midsection in the twenty-third round, and a moment later his right ended the fight with a short-arm jolt to the jaw.

Jeff's next fight of any importance was with his old opponent Ruhlin. After five rounds Ruhlin quit. Jeff had learned too much for Ruhlin between their meetings.

Probably the greatest amount of punishment Jeff ever took—and he took a lot of it first and last—was in his second fight with Fitzsimmons. The fight took place in 1902, and Fitz threw all his cleverness and strength into the first three rounds. Jeff's face was badly cut by the blows, and while Fitz was fresh, the champion looked like a novice beside him. But he could not keep it up, and he could not seem to worry Jeff to any extent. In the eighth Jeff's right caught the old champion in the stomach, his left went to the jaw, and Fitzsimmons was classed among the has-beens for good.

The second fight with Jim Corbett was Jeff's last important fight. In that fight Jeff showed that he had at last learned the boxing game. He outfought Corbett, the admitted master of glove work and foot work, at every point of the game, and in the eleventh Corbett went down for the count. This was Corbett's last appearance in the ring.

Just prior to his retirement Jeff fought a four-round draw with Jack Munroe at Butte. It was a stay-four-rounds offer, and Munroe stayed by clinging to Jeff all the time. Munroe, after the fight, claimed he had knocked Jeff down. As a matter of fact the big man slipped and fell, but Munroe boasted of his alleged triumph until Jeff's anger was aroused and another fight was arranged. They met in San Francisco, and Munroe went down and out in the second round.

In his preparation for his fight with Johnson, Jeffries has done the hardest training work he was ever known to undergo. His methods have been peculiarly his own as a rule. He went in for bear shooting, fishing, mountain climbing and the like, and his trainers had little to say about what he did.

In preparing for Johnson, however, the retired champion has left no part of his training go uncared for. He would not agree to the match until assured by try-out work and the opinions of physicians that he was physically able to get into good condition. Once assured of that, he took up his quarters in the Santa Cruz mountains, sixty miles south of San Francisco, and drilled as he never drilled before. In his camp Jim Corbett, volunteer aid, reigned supreme. Jeff believed Jim was a wise man on matters connected with care of the body, and he heeded the former champion's words. Joe Choynski was there also, and Bob Armstrong. All three of them were victims of Jeff's handiwork in times past, but they worked hard to prepare him for his last great battle. Among Choynski's unrecorded battles is the defeat via a knockout of Jack Johnson. It was during a three-round fight at Galveston in 1892. Farmer Burns was another of the training squad. He is a wrestler of considerable repute, and not a day of training passed but Jeffries engaged him in a struggling, hauling, hefting match.

Eight years ago, when Johnson began to loom on the pugilistic horizon, he urged his managers to make every effort to arrange for a fight with Jeffries. "Jeffries can't touch me," was his boast even in those days, and he fretted continually over the fact that until he acquired a reputation his prospects for a championship battle were but as gauzy as the tail of Halle's comet. He says he believed then as confidently in his ability to achieve the title as he did six years later, when at last his opportunity to battle for the supreme prize was realized.

"It was not my fights themselves, but my fight to get those fights that proved the hardest part of the struggle," Johnson told the Associated Press in recounting his difficulties in reaching the pinnacle of his ambition. "It was my color. They told me to get a 'rep;' but how was I to get a 'rep' without meeting fighters of class? But I made them fight me. I just kept plugging along, snapping up what chances to fight I could grab, until by and by the top notchers saw that sooner or later they'd have to take me on. As soon as I had shown what I could do, the fight public—most of the fans, anyway—took sides with me, and that helped a whole lot."

Johnson asserts that he has never been apprehensive of possible defeat in any contest he has engaged in. None of them, he declares, had any terrors for him.

His four most important battles have been fought within the last year and a half, dating from his defeat of Tommy Burns in Australia, December 26, 1908. Having wrested the championship rom Burns, he determined to meet and defend his title against all comers. His fights with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Al Kaufman and Stanley Ketchel followed in rapid succession.

On his fights two or three years before, that had brought him prominence and helped him along greatly in his career, his contests with Sam Langford, the Boston negro, Joe Jeanette, Sam McVey, Denver Ed Martin, Jim Flynn and others, Johnson lays no particular stress except to regard them as so many rungs of the ladder of success.

"I'm looking for a fight," asserted Johnson, "in which I really can let myself out and show the public just what I can do. That's one reason why I'm so anxious to go up against Jeffries."

Johnson's declaration sustains the judgment of numerous sporting writers who have maintained for years that the big negro seldom, if ever, extended himself, and was capable of striking harder blows than he has ever delivered in the ring. It appears to have been a general belief that Johnson was "holding back." This was particularly noticeable in his recent fight with Stanley Ketchel. In that bout Johnson toyed with his man all the way. He seemed to think the fight a joke until a slip and a timely punch brought him to his knees and aroused his anger. Just what happened next has never been clearly known. It was too fast to watch, and in an instant's time Ketchel was on his back and being counted out. He did not seem to realize what had struck him, and Johnson himself seemed astonished at the result of his sudden exhibition of strength and speed.

Johnson was born in Galveston in 1878, his birthday being March 31, and if ring experience goes for anything he has it. In 1901, his first year as a fighter, he fought six fights, winning all but one, which was a draw. The next year he went into the ring sixteen times, and from then on he was almost constantly engaged till to date he has to his credit over sixty battles. While many of his opponents have not been of a style to test his mettle, his frequent bouts have served at least to keep him always in training, and this is one of the strong arguments of his partisans.

Temperamentally Johnson is an interesting study. His chief characteristic is his unfailing good nature, a curiously constant sort of good temper that nothing seems to ruffle. His "golden smile" is seldom out of evidence and not even the coarse and insulting jibes that frequently get him from fight spectators seem to have the power to disturb him. Even when ducking a storm of blows and showing a wonderful skill in evading the onslaughts of his opponents, Johnson never loses his poise nor his power of observation. His eyes take in and appraise everything that transpires at the ringside. He seems to hear every comment made by the onlookers and even in a clinch, when every muscle is tense, will recognize a witty sally from the audience with a flash of his ready smile, and, like as not, an equally witty rejoinder thrown at the audience over the reeking shoulder against which he is pressing.

"Why don't you fight, you black man?" yelled an enthusiast at the Johnson-Kaufman fight. The men were in a clinch at the time, but without a moment's hesitation Johnson shouted back, "Why should I fight? I've got your $10 already."

And this cool-headedness under fire is another of the negro's qualities upon which his backers count, believing it is impossible to rattle him by any known ring tactics. That his good nature does not indicate a low order of intelligence, however, has been clearly shown by his clever business methods and his rather well done ringside speeches. Men who have watched him say he simply has no nerves, using the word in the accepted sense.

Johnson feels that he has been well trained for this fight. He regards his present staff that has whipped him into shape in his wind swept camp on the beach as the best he ever had, and says no fighter was ever given more loyal and efficient service than he has received. All of his training partners—those who do the real work with him—are young men.

Tom Flanagan, the man who has assumed George Little's office and the nominal title of manager, is a well known Canadian athlete and sportsman, who has developed a number of prominent long distance runners, among them Longboat, the Indian.

Walter Burns, in charge of the rubbing and massage squad, is a negro who has been with Johnson continuously for the last eight years. He is regarded as an expert in his line.

Barney Furey, a negro who had charge of the road work department before Flanagan came out, has also been with Johnson for the last eight years, and, according to the champion, the camp is never complete without him.

The sparring partners, Marty Cutler (white), and George Cotton and Dave Mills (colored), are strapping young heavyweights, who in their capacity of human punch bags, have given the champion admirable service.

In addition to these men Al Kaufman, the giant young heavyweight, who has ben training at the Johnson camp prior to his fight with Sam Langford, frequently donned the mits with the champion, and these tilts never failed to furnish the real excitement at the camp.

Johnson's business affairs are looked after by Sig Hart, who has been connected with the champion only since last October, but whose acquaintance with him dates back twelve years. Hart is one of Johnson's favorites, and it is thought to hne been mainly on his account that George Little, who was hostile to Hart, was deposed. Hart is a veteran of the ring game, having been bantamweight champion eleven years ago.

Frank Sutton, a Pittsburg negro, who was formerly the trainer and sparring partner of Bobby Dobbs, the colored lightweight champion, joined Johnson's camp some time ago to look after the big fellow's cuisine. He has officiated as Johnson's cook before, and the champion is never entirely happy while training unless Sutton is in the kitchen.

The last, but not the least of the big negro's training staff is his huge 90-horsepower automobile, a battleship gray, torpedo bodied affair that Johnson handles with cleverness and skill. This motor car has given the champion more fun and his staff more wory than any one thing in his weeks of training. He loves the big toy, and, driving it himself, tore over the roads at a terrific pace until Promoter Tex Rickard felt restrained to interfere.

Tex did not relish the thought of a mishap to the fighter and some three weeks prior to the fight persuaded Johnson to put his machine into the repair and paint shop, thus keeping the negro out of harm's way until the big event was over. Johnson is a chronic speed fiend, and while his car was at hand he never whirled away from camp but his trainers expected a message telling of disaster.

CORN IN MISSOURI

PREMIUMS TO BE AWARDED IN 1910 TO THE GROWERS OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

MERCHANDISE AND CASH $6,000

Of This Sum $4,500 Is Offered By the Frisco Railway Company— Annual Corn Show In Columbia This Fall.

Columbia, Mo., June 27.—The corn growers of Missouri will have an opportunity of winning premiums on corn this year that total in value more than $6,200. Of this amount $4,500 is offered by the Frisco railroad as prizes on corn grown in their territory. The Missouri Corn Growers' association, through the courtesy of a large number of manufacturing firms and other business enterprises presents a premium list that totals in value more than $1,700. Every man or boy in Missouri is eligible to compete for these prizes. The opportunity is yours. Will you take advantage of it?

The management of the Frisco lines after carefully investigating the work done at the Agricultural college of the University of Missouri believes it can well afford to send farmers along its lines to the university to make careful study of modern methods in agriculture as taught by that school. It therefore offers in each of the forty-five counties in Missouri, through which its lines extend, a scholarship of $100 to the short winter course in agriculture in the University of Missouri at Columbia next winter.

These scholarships consist of $100 each, which will be sufficient to pay all necessary expenses of the recipient for the entire term of fourteen weeks, beginning November 1, 1910. They will be awarded to the man or boy 16 years of age or over, who grows and exhibits the best ten ears of corn in his county this year. A corn show will be held in each of the Frisco counties this fall, where corn entered in this contest must be exhibited. Expert corn judges from the Agricultural college will judge the exhibits and award the scholarships. The date and place for holding these shows may be ascertained by writing the Agricultural college, Columbia, Mo.

The Missouri state corn show will be held this year as usual during farmers' week at the Agricultural college in Columbia. An unusually good list of premiums have been secured, the total list to date representing a value of more than $1,700. Among these premiums are a number of very valuable farm implements that are worthy of the best efforts of every corn grower in Missouri.

Some changes have been made in the plans for this year, and a number of new features have been added. It is planned to present a wider classification than has been the custom heretofore in order to insure a wider distribution of premiums. To bring this about the state will be divided into sections with a complete premium list in each. This will relieve the necessity of corn growers in some of the less favorable corn districts in the state from competing with those in the more favorable localities, and will doubtless increase interest in the show.

A SEDALIA CASE DECIDED

That of E. C. White Vs. E. B. York Has Been In Court Five Years.

(From Sunday's Daily)

The Missouri supreme court the past week rendered a decision pertaining to the garnishment of a wage earner which will be read with interest by many.

The substance of the opinion, which was rendered with Judges Gantt and Woodson dissenting, is that no one may be garinsheed before a judgment is secured when the sum garnisheed is $200 or less.

The opinion was rendered in the case of E. C. White vs. E. B. York, a former M., K. & T. shopman, whom Mr. White had sued for $30. The suit was originally brought in this county, about five years ago.

Mr. White's attorney, G. W. Barnett, put up the contention that the law prohibiting garnisheeing without first getting judgment is constitutional.

The judges, with the exceptinn of Gantt and Woodson, declared otherwise.

Mr. White is now preparing to take the case to the supreme court of the United States, claiming that a federal cause is involved.

The city ordinance specifies that cattle must be led, not driven, and in the future the police have orders to arrest any and all who violate the city law in that respect.

STATEMENT IS MADE

Committee of Machinists Give Their Side of Recent Ocurrence.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

That all citizens may know the truth, it has been said the machinists should answer all articles that are published against us, and to this we will say that when the accused is not guilty his conscience will not hurt him.

In regard to the statement of Mrs. Brandmeier in Thursday's issue of the Democrat-Sentinel, there was a committee called on her husband Sunday evening to explain to him the injury his boy was doing us, and tried to explain where, in justice to himself as well as to us, he should take his boy out of his present position, and unless he did he would be branded as a scab and would be known as one wherever he went. Mr. Brandmeier admitted he was doing our cause injury, but said if he took his boy out he would likely lose his job. He said he could not get his boy in the shops before the trouble with the machinists, as he had tried, but now, as machinist apprentices were hard to get, he accepted the position.

The committee did not threaten the boy any bodily harm, and this statement we believe unnecessary, as we believe the citizens of Sedalia can see for themselves what the machinists are doing, without having some one continually trying to get public sentiment against us.

Some of our men have been here for twenty years and more. Some have raised their families here and have helped to make living conditions for others who are now trying to tramp them under foot because we are holding up for our rights and trying to hold what we have worked for.

We would like for the people of Sedalia to think, and if they prefer the class of men the company has in our places, we come them. But if you wish for your citizens that have been with you for years to go back to work at an early date, then give us your good will. We are out for working conditions, and we are going to get them.

CAPT. FAST DEAD

END CAME TO PROMINENT SEDALIAN AT MANSFIELD, O., THIS MORNING.

STRICKEN AT FAMILY REUNION

Never Rallied From Operation for Appendicitis, but Lingered for Nearly Two Weeks—Was Veteran of Civil War.

(From Friday's Daily.)

Capt. Wilson A. Fast, socially, politically and commercially one of Sedalia's most prominent citizens, died in a hospital at Mansfield, O., at 9 o'clock this morning, after being at death's door since Thursday night, June 16, on which date he was operated upon for appendicitis by a Cleveland, O., surgeon.

The news of Mr. Fast's death came to his son-in-law, I. D. Turner, an M. K. & T. conductor, Dr. Ira T. Bronson and others in telegrams received at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Fast left Sedalia on Friday, June 3, for Orange, Ashland county, O., to attend a family reunion, at which between 200 and 300 relatives of the Fast family were to be present.

Less than two weeks later he was taken critically ill with appendicitis and on the date mentioned was removed to the Mansfield hospital, where he underwent a surgical operation.

He rallied from the opiates favorably, but his condition remained critical in the extreme and at no time since the operation did the physicians or nurses give any hope of complete recovery.

Sedalia friends were apprised occasionally of the patient's condition, but when Mr. Turner, who with his wife left for Mansfield when the first intimation of Mr. Fast's sickness became known, returned here Wednesday night and stated there was no change it was feared that the final summons was not far off and promptly at the hour stated the soul of deceased passed into the unknown world beyond.

Mr. Fast was probably one of the most widely known men in Sedalia, while his acquaintance throughout Central Missouri was wide and varied. He came to Missouri from Iowa more than thirty years ago and at once began the practice of his profession as a lawyer, which he pursued very successfully up to the time of his sickness and was the attorney in a number of cases now awaiting trial in different courts.

Frequently he would engage in the handling of real estate, his ability in that line being rated with the best, and his honesty and integrity in dealing with all, placed him in the ranks of Sedalia's most conscientious and square-dealing citizens.

For years he was pension agent in Sedalia for the old soldiers in this district and he himself was a veteran of the civil war, having been a corporal in Company K, 102nd Ohio Volunteer infantry.

Capt. Fast at the time of his death was a past commander and adjutant general of post No. 53, Grand Army of the Republic, and frequently was a visitor and delegate to state and national encampments of that organization.

Politically Mr. Fast was a republican. He was a stalwart party worker, an able orator and prudent campaigner and at the time of his demise was an aspirant on the republican ticket for the office of probate judge of Pettis county, he having held no public office since coming to Sedalia more than a quarter of a century ago.

As a citizen, Mr. Fast had no superiors, while as a friend he was true blue, and his kindly disposition and helping hand always extended to those in need, will cause many to say a kind word in memory of him, when learning of his sudden and untimely demise.

Besides his daughter, Mrs. Turner, who was at his bedside when he passed away, deceased is survived by two sons, J. C. Fast, of Muskogee, Oklahoma, and Carl Fast, residing in Montana, also a brother, B. F. Fast, residing in Iowa, and a married sister in Iowa, and another married sister, living at Denver.

Mr. Fast was 68 years of age and for the past twenty-five years resided at the corner of Fifth street and Hancock avenue.

The funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Douglas H. Atwill, rector of Calvary parish, at that edifice at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Mrs. E. F. Yancey will be in charge of the music and will be assisted by Mrs. Harvey MacGugin, Mrs. C. C. Kelly, William Jakeman and Dr. W. J. Willis, while Miss Ella Kuhn will preside at the organ.

There will be no special selections sung, the numbers to be decided on by those in charge of the musical program.

The remains will be interred in Crown Hill cemetery and Post No. 53, G. A. R., will attend in a body and carry out the organization's ritualistic services at the grave.

The pall-bearers will be:

George Williams and Charles Koock, representing the G. A. R.

Chris Eckhoff and Lou Bernstein, representing the National Union.

Judge Louis Hoffman and H. D. Dow, representing the Pettis County Bar association.

Out of respect to the beloved dead, the Pettis County Bar association held two separate meetings at the court house Saturday, one to arrange for the funeral and the second to draft resolutions in memory of the dead.

The committee on resolutions, G. W. Barnett, P. H. Sangree and H. D. Dow, presented the following, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we are deeply grieved to learn of the death of our brother, Wilson A. Fast. That in his death the bar has lost a worthy member and the community a valuable and upright citizen.

In an earlier day Mr. Fast was quite actively engaged in the practice of law, and was an industrious, painstaking, careful and successful lawyer; and while in later years not so actively engaged in his profession, he remained a good and safe lawyer, conscientious and reliable, and always maintained a high standard of honor and integrity. He never was guilty of an act that brought reproach on the profession.

Mr. Fast was a man of high moral character; a man of culture and liberal education, and always stood for that which was best, both as a citizen and as a lawyer. He has left to his children that which is more to be desired than gold, a good name, and we claim that good name is a part of the treasures of the Pettis county bar.

Mr. Fast, at the time of his death, was one of the oldest practitioners at our bar, and his passing away reminds us that all things here are fleeting and unstable, and tells us that we should so live that when our summons comes to join the innumerable throng that has passed before, that our surviving brothers can say for us what we today say for Mr. Fast.

Resolved, That we express to his bereaved family our deep and heartfelt sympathy, and that we feel that their loss is our loss. In this hour of bereavement we can do but little, but we tender this, our tribute of respect for the memory of our brother.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to each of the daily newspapers and one copy be presented to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be spread upon the records of the circuit court of this county.

GEO. W. BARNETT,
P. H. SANGREE,
HARVEY D. DOW,
Com. on Resolutions.

The above resolutions were approved and adopted by the bar as its action. Done this 25th day of June, 1910.

H. T. WILLIAMS, Chairman.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—relieves blood pressure the way from pain sufferers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

It's painful periods with women, makes cause, if you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain, too? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

WILL MAKE HORSES GLAD

A Simple Preparation Gives Immunity From the Pesky Fly.

If you love horses and hate flies, here is a recipe that you should paste in your hat, says the Kansas City Star. It is from O. R. Polk, of Atchison, Kas., an employe of the Missouri Pacific Railroad company, who says it was given him by a horseman in Texas, and that it will afford horses absolute protection from flies. The recipe:

Pennyroyal .....1 ounce
Alcohol .....2 ounces
Fish oil.....½ pint

Mix in a bottle and shake well before using. Apply lightly to the horse's coat each morning, and for twenty-four hours he will be immune from winged pests. Be careful to apply the preparation lightly, or it will stiffen the hair. It has no offensive odor, and is absolutely harmless. One bottle will last a summer for one horse. Any drug store can supply the ingredients.

"Flies will drive a nervous horse nearly wild in hot weather," Mr. Polk said. "I hate to see them suffer, so I hope everyone will try this preparation. It is cheap, and certainly does the work. And it will protect dogs and other animals just as effectively."

Leslie L. Craig, a young farmer of near Calhoun, Mo., and Miss Lulu F. Curnutt, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curnutt, south of Houstonia, eloped to Sedalia Wednesday and were united in marriage by Judge Rickman, says the Houstonian.

The young lady came to town Wednesday morning with her mother to do some shopping, and after arriving here refused to return home. In spite of arguments to the contrary, she and her sweetheart took the train to Sedalia, where the marriage took place.

MARSHALL GETS IT

IF NECESSARY, SPRINGFIELD CAN WAIT, MR. HAMLIN SAYS IN LETTER.

CAN'T GET TWO PUBLIC BUILDINGS

A Misleading Telegram Got the Congressman Into Trouble—Sets Himself Right Up in Saline County.

Some days ago there appeared a telegram in several newspapers, stating that as public building appropriations could not be made for both Springfield and Marshall that Congressman C. W. Hamlin had decided not to push Marshall's claims, says the Springfield Leader of Saturday. This caused the Commercial club of Marshall to protest to Mr. Hamlin, who in a long reply to W. C. Gordon, president of the club, says:

I am just in receipt of your "night letter" in regard to the statement said to be in Missouri's Sunday papers, in relation to public building bill and have wired you as follows:

"Satement in Sunday's papers. referred to in your telegram, wholly unauthorized. I have had no thought of leaving Marshall out of the bill. Marshall will be in the bill for $60,000. See letter.—C. W. Hamlin."

I now write to confirm that message. The publication to which you refer, did me an injustice, and you, relying on that publication, supposing it to be correct, were justly indignant at me; but now that you know the facts I sincerely trust that you and your people will feel correspondingly kindly toward me.

I had not seen the publication to which you referred and had not heard of it until this morning. My colleague, Judge Rucker, of the Second Missouri district, came into my office and asked me if I had seen the statement in the Sunday papers in regard to what the public building bill would contain. I answered him that I had not. He then told me what the statement in the papers was in relation to both his and my districts. While we were talking about the matter a messenger boy brought your telegram into my office. I was naturally indignant over this publication, and was anxious to ascertain if it was authorized by Mr. Bartholdt, who, as a member of that committee, had charge of the Missouri projects.

Judge Rucker and myself went immediately to Mr. Bartholdt's office and he assured us there that the publication was wholly unauthorized by him, and assured us that he could not understand how they got the information which they published, as the bill has not yet been reported.

Mr. Bartholdt has stated all along that he would consult each member of the delegation in relation to projects to go into the bill for his district.

Some two weeks ago I had a talk with him, and of course, insisted strongly that he ought to put both Marshall and Springfield in the bill. This he contended would be impossible, for the reason that he was compelled, "by the powers that be," to report a small bill and therefore could not take care of more than one project in each district, and that therefore I must make a selection. I then asked him when he was going to take up the Missouri projects and he informed me that it would be after he had gone over the projects from other states.

I, like the other members, was waiting to be notified by him, when he was ready to take up the Missouri projects, but I was not notified, and as I stated a while ago, immediately upon the receipt of your telegram I went to his office in company with Judge Rucker and had a conference with him, with the result that he assured me, in Judge Rucker's presence, that upon my request he would put Marshall in the bill for $60,000, which he also stated was an extremely liberal allowance, especially when compared with other projects in the bill for towns the size of Marshall.

To show you that I have not wavered for a moment in my determination to take care of Marshall, in case I could get only one project in the bill, I enclose herewith a copy of a letter written to Dr. Reinhoff, president of the Springfield club, dated the 4th day of this month and which will explain itself.

The doctor seems to have entirely misconstrued this letter, getting the idea that I was going to put Marshall in the bill in the house, but would endeavor to have Senator Stone and Senator Warner, when the bill got over to the senate, to substitute Springfield.

I ascertained that fact from a copy of a letter which he had written to Senators Stone and Warner and a copy of which he enclosed to me in a communication dated June 10th, 1910, and a copy of which I send you.

I was greatly surprised at his misconstruction of my letter of June 4th, 1910, and immediately upon receipt of his letter wrote him the letter dated June 13th, 1910, a copy of which I herewith enclose you.

I think that you will see from this correspondence that I state only the simple truth when I say I have never wavered in my determination to take care of Marshall.

As I stated to Dr. Rienhoff in my letter of the 13th, I have not been actuated in my selection of Marshall by sentiment, but purely by what my idea of fairness and of my duty to my constituency dictated. It is not a question of love—for I love the people of both Saline and Greene counties. It is a question of what I believe to be fair and right.

I have realized all along that Springfield needs, badly, an extension to her building, yet being confronted by the fact that she has a building in which she can transact her business and Marshall has none, it has always seemed to me that I, representing the entire district, could do only one thing, and that was to select the town which had no building.

I realize that, in all probability, I will be criticised, especially by the republican press of Springfield, for selecting Marshall, but the course I have pursued expresses my judgment, as your representative, and has the unqualified approval of my conscience.

In conclusion, let me indulge the hope that as I perhaps have been criticised by my constituents at Marshall and Saline county, who were misled by the newspaper article referred to, that my friends at Marshall, who are so deeply concerned in the welfare of their own town, will see to it that my true attitude is made known to the public, fully believing when this is done I will have the approval of all fair-minded people both at Marshall and Springfield.

KILLED IN AN AUTO WRECK

Pittsburg, Pa., Merchant's Machine Is Hit By Trolley.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 27.—William H. Hamilton, a wealthy furniture dealer of Roscoe, started out in his new touring car last afternoon with his wife, their family of two little girls and two older boys and a neighbor's girl, to try out the machine.

He failed to stop quickly enough when he met an interurban car on the Pittsburg-Charleroi line, fifteen miles out of Pittsburg. The motor and trolley collided and the gasoline tank in the auto exploded. Hamilton was killed and his 18-year-old son, Leroy, was burned to a crisp in the wreckage.

All five survivors are in the Charleroi hospital. Mrs. Hamilton was so badly burned that it is not thought she can recover. One little daughter sustained a fractured skull and three other children cuts and burns.

S.S.S.

CURES BLOOD TROUBLES

We have never claimed S. S. S. to be a medicine to work wonders, nor one that would cure every ailment of mankind; but we do know it to be a specific for those disorders originating from impure or diseased blood. When we say this medicine cures blood troubles we are stating a fact which is corroborated by the experience of thousands, and doubtless there are persons in your locality who know its value as a blood medicine because they have used it, or heard of its being used, with success.

Our bodies are absolutely dependent on pure blood for health. This fluid is the most vital force of life, and as long as it remains pure we are apt to escape disease, but any impurity, humor or poison acts injuriously on the system and affects some portion of the body.

Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes, and the various skin affections, show that the blood is in a feverish and diseased condition as the result of some humor, or the presence of a fiery acid which inflames and irritates the delicate fibres and tissues. Rheumatism comes from an excess of uric acid in the circulation, causing soreness and stiffness of the muscles and joints, while Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, and Contagious Blood Poison are all deep-seated blood disorders which will continue to grow worse as long as the cause remains.

Gentlemen:—S. S. S. is a good medicine. It is an excellent tonic to give appetite and energy and make one feel better in every way. I have found it also an excellent blood purifier. For months I was troubled with an itching skin eruption on the face, and tried specialists and many remedies to get a cure, but S. S. S. is the only medicine that would cure. I am now free of this eruption. I think a great deal of your medicine, knowing it to be the best blood purifier and tonic known to the world today.
MRS. FRANK HORNER.
1330 East Seventh St., Canton, O.

From childhood I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease. My parents had me treated by a number of physicians, but the disease was too much for them. Thus I grew into manhood, handicapped by a terrible disease; and having tried so many remedies without relief, a friend urged me to try S. S. S. I had little faith in any medicine. I was happy to find, however, that I had at last gotten the right remedy. S. S. S. did me so much good that I soon had hopes of being cured. I continued the remedy and was cured completely. CHARLES GLENN.
2625 Wash. St., Mt. Jackson, Ind.

S. S. S. is a natural blood purifier and tonic. It is made entirely of the pure juices and extracts of roots, herbs and barks of recognized curative ability, and being absolutely free from all harmful minerals is a safe medicine for young or old. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every trace of impurity, humor or poison. It purifies and enriches the blood and cures promptly and permanently Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other diseases and disorders due to impurities and poisons in the blood, whether inherited or acquired.

S. S. S. is the most reliable and at the same time the most pleasant acting medicine for those whose blood has become weak and anaemic, or who are suffering from Malaria or other debilitating sickness. It adds strength to the circulation, builds up failing health, and in every way acts as a bracing, healthful tonic to the system. We will be glad to send a general treatise on the blood, and any medical advice necessary to the treatment, free to all who write describing the trouble from which they are suffering. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

SENDING MONEY BY MAIL

Postmaster Codding Has Good Word for the Law in Greece.

E. E. Codding, postmaster, received a communication from Washington Saturday, reciting the law which is in effect in Greece, imposing a fine and penalty for sending money through the mails without registering.

"That would be an excellent law to be in effect in the United States," Mr. Codding remarked, "for it would do a world of good and would bring about the proper sending of money through the mail, instead of taking a chance, as is done time and again now, often with disastrous results."

The marriage of a Sedalia young man is written of as follows in the Boulder (Colo.) Daily Herald of Wednesday, June 22:

At the home of the officiating clergyman, 2343 Ninth street, in this city last evening at 8 o'clock, Albert W. Lutz, of Sedalia, Mo., and Miss Anna Zbaren, of this city, were married by Rev. J. C. Jacoby, D. D., pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church.

LAD FELL FROM A SURREY

Master Glenn Brill Had a Close Call Sunday Evening.

(From Monday's Daily)

Master Glenn Brill, a 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Brill, had a narrow escape from serious injury at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, while returning with his parents and others from a day's outing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Schneider, southeast of town.

Master Glenn was riding with his parents in the rear seat of a surrey, and when about four miles from Sedalia he fell out of the vehicle and under one wheel. The wheel passed over his stomach, at first it being feared he had been injured internally. In the fall to the road he hurt his shoulder quite painfully.

The lad was hurriedly brought to town and Drs. W. J. Ferguson and C. B. Trader called to attend him. They made an examination of the child, but couid find no evidence of internal injury, the only hurt being on his shoulder.

ENDS COURT HOUSE FIGHT

Greene County Will Witness Corner Stone Laying, July 16.

Springfield, Mo., June 27.—Arrangements are being made for laying the cornerstone of the new $350,000 Greene county court house, Saturday, July 16.

This will mark the longest fight in the state for the location of a court house between two factions in a county.

The fight commenced thirty years ago, when a court house was found to be needed badly, but the people of the county could not agree on a site.

Governor Hadley, John E. Swanger and James A. Reed probably will be the speakers at the corner stone laying if they will attend.

WORK OF BANDITS

KILLED A MANUFACTURER AND ROBBED HIM OF A BAG CONTAINING $4,000.

THEN TRIO MURDERED POLICEMEN

Two of the Robbers Shot In Return, One Fatally—Third Man Captured and the Stolen Cash Was Recovered.

Lynn, Mass., June 25.—Three robbers shot and killed Thomas A. Landregan, a prominent shoe manufacturer of this city, here today, fatally wounded Police Officer James Carroll, and seized from Landregan a bag containing $4,000 which the manufacturer had just drawn from the bank as the weekly pay-roll. Policeman Carroll died a few minutes after he was shot.

The robbers fled to high rock suburb, where they were surrounded by a large force of police and citizens. In less than an hour Patrolman Thompson saw one robber. He opened fire and the man returned the shot. The robber was fatally wounded. He said his name is Abba Anson, of New York.

Another of the men was seen near Lynn hospital. Policeman Grady exchanged shots with the robber, one of Grady's bullets striking the man. The bandit's condition is serious. His name was not learned.

The third was captured without a fight on Western avenue, a short distance from where the second highwayman was shot.

Search of the robbers' clothing resulted in the recovery of all the money except $7, which was lost in the chase.

Fast, would be filled, Mr. Meuschke answered that he did not know, as he had just returned home and had not talked with any of the party leaders or members of the committee, but the work would be performed in ample time.

"Foley Kidney Pills Have Cured Me."

The above is a quotation from a letter written by H. M. Winkler, Evansville, Ind. "I contracted a severe case of kidney trouble. My back gave out and pained me. I seemed to have lost all strength and ambition; was bothered with dizzy spells, my head would swim and specks float before my eyes. I took Foley's Kidney Pills regularly and am now perfectly well and feel like a new man. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me."—W. E. Bard Drug Co.

PAYROLL IS LARGE

THAT OF THE M., K. & T. SHOPS FOR JUNE IS THE LARGEST IN ITS HISTORY.

FORCE TO BE LARGELY INCREASED

When Improvements Now Under Way Are Completed It Is the Intention to Put 300 Additional Men to Work.

(From Sunday's Daily)

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway shop in this city are now employing more than 600 men ,the largest number ever employed there since the shops were built.

In spite of this fact, W. A. Mitchell, master carbuilder, is advertising for more men, and when the improvements, additions, etc., now under way at the shop grounds are completed employment will be given to 300 additional men, swelling the force of workmen to almost 1,000.

This showing is most remarkable. Only car repairing, car building and the putting on of all the finishing touches of both passeger and freight cars is done here, all locomotive work being done at Parsons, Kan.

The local Katy shops are now filled with "bad order" freight and passenger cars, awaiting repairs, while at numerous points along the line more cars are awaiting their turn to be "fixed."

Since July, 1909, according to Mr. Mitchell, hundreds and hundreds of car loads of lumber have been used in the repairing and rebuilding of passenger and freight cars at the Sedalia shops; and although lumber is being unloaded continuously, day in and day out, the supply never gets larger, due to the exceedingly large amount used daily.

Sedalians generally have no idea of the various kinds and amount of work done at the local shops. Passeger and freight cars are entirely rebuilt, starting in the wheel shop, where the wheels are fitted on axles, the cars make a circuitous route over the shops grounds, visiting the car department, freight shop, truck department and painting department, after which they are ready to be turned out for use.

The most minute pieces of work on cars is done at the local shops, including the cleaning of the various pieces of brass, handlebars, car lamps, etc. Even the making of colored glass, which affords such neat decoration for passenger cars and special cars, is included in the shop work.

Mr. Mitchell's office, at the entrance to the shop grounds, is undergoing a thorough remodeling, affording more office room and giving that official better quarters.

The pay roll for this month will be the largest since the shops were built, a mighty good thing for Sedalia merchants as well as company employes.

THE CHARGE IS DROPPED

Mr. Thomas J. Byrne Made a Worthless Check Good.

(From Monday's Daily.)

J. E. Love, night chief of police, returned this morning from St. Louis, to which place he went Friday night with a warrant for the arrest of Thomas J. Byrne, a well known contractor, of the Byrne Construction company, charged with obtaining $15 fraudulently from Charles F. Walch, of Walch's cafe, on May 28.

Byrne was arrested by the St. Louis police and turned over to Chief Love, but immediately he settled the case, reimbursing Mr. Walch and paying all costs, amounting to about $55, after which he was released and the charge dropped.

MUST BE ABOVE SUSPICION.

Kidney and bladder ailments are so serious in their consequences, and if unchecked so often fatal that any remedy offered for their cure must be above suspicion. Foley Kidney Pills contain no harmful drugs, and have successfully stood a long and thorough test. —W. E. Bard Drug Co.

Let's hear from some one else!

MAY LOSE MONEY

AN EVEN BREAK FOR RICKARD AND GLEASON BE CONSIDERED LUCKY.

GOV. GILLETTE DID IT THEY SAY

Refund on Money Paid in Is Now Being Demanded by Ticket Purchasers—Prices Soar in City of Reno.

Reno, Nev., June 27.—If "Tex" Rickard and Jack Gleason, the promoters of the big battle, break even they will be lucky.

Judging from the large number of cancellations of reserved seats that are being received here hourly now, the promoters have lost fully $200,000 by taking the fight to Reno, as forced by the orders of Governor Gillett, of California.

If the promoters have $100,000 seat sale they will be fortunate This amount, coupled with the money received for the pictures, will not give a profit worth mentioning.

In San Francisco the battle would easily draw $300,000. Rickard and Gleason had $120,000 in a 'Frisco bank. This money was sent by fans for reservations, and they held $100,000 worth of seats for different men that were not yet paid for. This brought the total amount up to within $75,000, the goal they were striving for. Then came the death blow that was dealt out by Governor Gillett. Cancellations since then have followed rapidly.

Sunday Gleason stated that he had in his grip cancellations for $5,000 worth of tickets, the money for which had already been paid and which was in a 'Frisco bank. He stated further that cancellation o $70,000 worth of seats which were reserved but were not paid for yet had also been received.

The prices on everything on sale in Reno are soaring upward.

TEACHERS' CONTRACTS

Must Be Signed With A. W. McZenzie by July 15.

(From Sunday's Daily)

All contracts to be entered into between the teachers of the Sedalia public schools and the school board directors are now in the hands of Secretary A. W. McKenzie and must be signed not later than July 15, else the teacher's appointment to a position becomes void.

The regular meeting of the school board was to have been held Friday night, but for some reason it was cancelled. So far no date has been set for the assignment of teachers, who were recently elected, as chronicled in the Democrat-Sentinel.

CUBS WON EASILY

DEFEATED THE LEE'S SUMMIT TEAM SUNDAY AFTERNOON BY SCORE OF 7 TO 1.

DUVENICK ALLOWED THREE HITS

Outpitched Stevenson at All Stages of the Game—Warsaw "Reds" to Be With Us on Saturday and Sunday Next.

(From Monday's Daily.)

The reorganized Sedalia Cubs, under the management of R. J. Easley, defeated the reputed fast Lee's Summit team on the Liberty park diamond in the presence of possibly 500 people Sunday afternoon by a score of 7 to 1.

It had been told to Manager Easley that the Lee's Summit bunch was the "classiest" amateur ball team that had visited Sedalia this season, and this "misinformation" had been printed in the local press, so the audience was expecting an unusually good exhibition of the great national game, but was disappointed.

The visitors claimed to be short four of their regular men, three of whom were reported ill, and the fourth was playing with a semi-professional team in Kansas City yesterday. If such was the case it may in a measure account for their defeat.

Stevenson, who was in the box for the visitors, is said to have made a reputation in Kansas City, but judging by his exhibition here Sunday he is not in the same class with Sam Duvenick, who pitched for the Cubs. The latter never had to exert himself, and his victory was one of the easiest of the year. The lineup and batting order follows:

Lee's Summit—Koons, rf; Bowen, 2b; Allen, 3b; Jesse, ss; M. Smith, rf; Frogge, 1b; C. Smith, cf; Noel, c; Stevenson, p.

Cubs—Stewart, lf; Calloway, 3b; Armstrong, ss; Norman, 2b; Shadwell, 1b; Williams, cf; Owens, rf; Duvenick, p; Wilkinson, c.

There were no special features on the part of the visitors. In fact, they were frequently up in the air, and stood aghast when a Cub would cross the home plate while one of their number was holding the ball, apparently not knowing what to do with it.

The Cubs played good ball, the only two errors made being charged up to Billy Owens—in one instance letting a ball get away from him and in the other an overthrow to the plate. Worthy of special mention were a two-bagger and a three-bagger by Armstrong, Calloway's one-handed catch of a line drive and Wilkinson's landing of a foul ball, after a hard run. A summary of the game follows:

Cubs .....2 0 1 1 0 0 0 3 x—7 9 2

Struck out: By Duvenick, 12; by Stevenson, 6. Bases on balls: By Duvenick, 1; by Stevenson, 3. Hit by pitched ball: By Duvenick, 4; by Stevenson, 1. Three-base hits: Calloway and Armstrong. Two-base hits: Armstrong. Double plays: Wilkinson and Shadwell; C. Smith and Frogge. Stolen bases: Cubs, 5; Lee's Summit, 2. Time of game: 1 hour, 30 minutes. Umpire: Brown. Scorer: Art Sterling.

The Warsaw club will be here for games next Saturday and Sunday, July 2 and 3, and good exhibitions are assured. On Monday, the 4th, the Cubs go to Warsaw for a return game.

THE SCRATCH OF A HAT PIN

Resulted in Erysipelas for a Former Sedalia Girl.

(From Sunday's Daily)

A daughter of Mrs. Nellie O'Brien, widow of James O'Brien, a cigar manufacturer in Kansas City, was written of as follows in Friday afternoon's issue of the Kansas City Star:

"The deadly hatpin has an ally in the deadly hair puff.

"Miss Norrine O'Brien, of 3704 Main street, is just recovering from a severe attack of erysipelas, probably caused, her doctor said, from an infection from a hatpin scratch.

"Two weeks ago as she was pinning her hat on, she scratched her forehead. It was only a little scratch and no attention was paid to it. But an infection developed, probably from a puff, and erysipelas resulted.

A FEW SHORT WEEKS.

Mr. J. S. Bartell, Edwardsville, Ill., writes: "A few months ago my kidneys became congested. I had severe backache and pain across the kidneys and hips. Foley's Kidney Pills promptly cured my backache and corrected the action of my kidneys. This was brought about after my using them for only a few short weeks and I can cheerfully recommend them."—W.
